

MONKS END PROTESTS

Seek Good Will

... FROM KY

Salmon, Ky. — Buddhist leaders Sunday formally suspended for two weeks their opposition to the Saigon government and pleaded with the government to "show good will toward our religion" during that period.

A conference of the leading monks of the Unified Buddhist Church, will then be called to assess the situation and make further decisions, a statement said.

The action was a compromise formula for conciliation offered to the government by the badly shaken Buddhist leadership.

Council At Pagoda

The Buddhist decision was taken at a meeting in Saigon's An Quang Pagoda by the church's council, also called "the committee for the protection of Buddhism."

Thich Tri Quang, the irascible monk who until recently constituted a major threat to the regime, did not attend the meeting. He is bedridden in a clinic in the 26th day of an anti-government protest fast.

The compromise formula was decided by the nine remaining council members headed by the moderate leader, Thich Tam Chau.

Tam Chau warned the other monks that unless a spirit of moderation and conciliation prevails, "I will resign for good."

The monks had little choice. Their once vocal and often virulent opposition to the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been broken by the government's stiff resistance.

Nevertheless, the government still regards the church, with its 2 million followers, as a political force to be reckoned with. The government is particularly concerned about the Buddhist threat to boycott the crucial Sept. 11 elections for South Viet Nam's constituent assembly.

A communique issued at the end of Sunday's meeting did not mention the election issue.

It said simply that "the struggle is being suspended for two weeks to permit the government to show good will toward our religion."

A Buddhist spokesman said the council expected leniency toward jailed members of the Buddhist "struggle groups" who triggered dissidence and sparked riots in Saigon.

Ky already has indicated that he will show mercy toward his foes. Undoubtedly, the approaching elections and the necessity for a compromise formula.

The Buddhist communique stressed, however, that, if no positive reaction is shown by the government, "Our struggle will be resumed."

The phrase was seen more as a face-saving device for local consumption than a real threat.

At the same time, Tam Chau said he is calling a congress of all leading monks of the church whose main strength lies north of Saigon.

The Congress will convene about 10 leading monks. The southern areas in the Mekong River delta form a separate Buddhist organization and have been inactive politically.

The unified church has been insisting that it does not have political objectives but has "a responsibility toward the nation and the people."

In recent weeks, particularly since the back of Buddhist dissidence has been broken, the church sharply condemned the idea of communist peace negotiations.

Even its original anti-Americanism gave way to an official policy statement that "the presence of American troops in Viet Nam is obviously needed... it is still better than a Viet Cong regime."

BOMBINGS ...

Red China Claims No Aid Bounds

Tokyo (AP) — Red China has declared the U.S. bombing of oil depots on Hanoi's outskirts "now has freed us from any bounds of restriction" in aiding North Viet Nam. It also said the United States is preparing to send ground forces into Laos.

The fresh denunciation of the bombing raids and the Laos accusation came in government statements broadcast Monday and Sunday by its New China News Agency (NCNA).

Quoting the Chinese foreign ministry, a statement Monday charged:

"At the instigation of the United States, military personnel of Thailand and South Viet Nam have successfully infiltrated into the areas of central and lower Laos."

U.S. Responsible

Of the attacks near Hanoi, NCNA said in a statement Sunday that Peking holds the United States "responsible for all the serious consequences arising therefrom."

"China has consistently and unreservedly done its utmost of support and aid Viet Nam politically, morally and materially and in other fields," it added. "The development of U.S. imperialism of its war of aggression to a new and still graver stage has now further freed us from any bounds or restrictions in rendering such support and aid. In accordance with the interests and demands of the Vietnamese people, we will at any time take such actions as we deem necessary."

The statement, the New China News Agency said, "reiterates the many previous solemn statements by the Chinese government and Premier Chou En-lai that the Chinese people mean what they say, that China is prepared and that once the war breaks out, it will have no boundaries."

Final Victory

"We must tell the U.S. imperialists in all seriousness: wherever you extend the war and however heavy the price, we will unswervingly support the fraternal Vietnamese people in fighting through to the end, till they thoroughly and completely drive the U.S. aggressors out of Viet Nam and win final victory."

U.S. military spokesmen say American bombs hit fuel depots as close as two miles from Hanoi, and three and a half miles from Hanoi, in areas with no sizable density of population. There have been no U.S. reports of bombing either city as such.

The Chinese statement said that by this bombing "U.S. imperialism is attempting to coerce the Vietnamese people into submission and into accepting its 'peace talks' swindle."

"It wishfully thinks that it can 'force' peace talks through bombing" so that it can perpetuate its occupation of Southern Viet Nam and turn the latter into its base of aggression against Northern Viet Nam, against the whole of Indochina, against China and against the whole of Asia."

"Then we served them dinner," Hays said. "But one North Vietnamese said something sharply and they wouldn't eat."

Later, Hays said, "We sent them some rice with soy sauce and they ate that. They also had a big meal the following morning."

Although the engagement took place in international waters between two nations not officially at war, the men are apparently considered prisoners under the Geneva Convention.

Rescuers Met By Knife

... NEBRASKAN DESCRIBES CAPTURE OF REDS

Salmon, Ky. — A U.S. Navy officer, whose ship was the target of North Vietnamese torpedo boats, told Sunday how a North Vietnamese sailor from a sunken craft pulled a knife on his American rescuers and some of his communist shipmates had to be forced to board a rescue boat.

Lt. Cmdr. Will Hays, 34, of Giltner, Neb., executive officer of the U.S.S. Coontz, described at a Saigon news conference the resistance put up by the heavily indoctrinated sailors to the U.S. rescue party in the South China Sea.

Three North Vietnamese torpedo patrol boats attempted to attack the Coontz, a guided missile frigate, as it patrolled international waters 38 miles off North Viet Nam's coastline Friday.

Fighter bombers from the aircraft carriers Constellation and Hancock were called in and sank the enemy craft with bombs and rockets.

19 Picked Up

Nineteen enemy sailors, wearing blue shorts and t-shirts, were picked up by rescue crews from the Coontz and the U.S. destroyer King.

Most of them went aboard the rescue boats willingly. But some attempted to swim away, and one had to be subdued after he pulled a knife on American sailors.

The three torpedo boats—no more than 70 feet long and manned by eight to 12 men—were picked up on radar by the Coontz as they closed in at high speed on the American frigate.

A flight of U.S. phantom jets flew over the area and was fired on by heavy machineguns from the North Vietnamese vessels.

Immediately afterwards, a flight of four Skyhawks from the Constellation appeared over the area, led by Lt. Cmdr. Chicken Special Leonard E. Giuliani, 32, of Havertown, Pa.

Sent 2 Planes

Dressed in flying overalls, Giuliani told a Saigon news conference Sunday he dispatched two of his planes to attack a boat damaged by a previous attack and he himself and his wingman concentrated on the boat fleeing at high speed. The third boat was struck by the original air attack and was sinking.

"We had three near-misses and we pounded a lot of 20 millimeter shells into it," Giuliani said.

The air attacks were a success and in less than two hours the King and Coontz attempted to rescue sailors floating in the water or clutching to one listing torpedo boat.

Said Hays:

"We approached the listing boat with our guns trained on it. Their guns were trained on us but then were lifted upwards as a sign they were not going to shoot."

"One of my men looked up the Vietnamese term 'jump into the water' in a dictionary and I shouted it to them through a loudspeaker. Nothing happened."

Bells To Ring For Fourth

Lincoln will join 20,000 other cities and towns across the nation Monday as bell-ringing spreads over the city at noon in celebration of the Fourth of July.

All the churches in Lincoln with bell towers, the carillon tower on the University of Nebraska campus, and Lincoln's TV and radio stations will join in pealing out the 190th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The custom, once common, was revived several years ago by Eric Sloane, a painter of American landscapes and a researcher in early crafts and customs of Americans.

During the course of his research, he discovered that during the first 100 years of the nation's existence, bell-ringing was the customary way of celebrating Independence Day. Fireworks became popular only after the Civil War, gradually replacing the pealing of the bells.

Reborn

The practice was reborn along the Eastern seaboard, and it spread westward through the country.

Bell-ringing on the Fourth is not uncommon to the Lincoln area, and the local American Legion has supported it for the past three or four years without knowledge of Eric Sloane and the origin of the practice.

This year, however, in response to the nationwide impetus, the American Legion and the Daughters of Union Veterans joined forces to make this the "ringiest Fourth ever." Since few of Lincoln's churches are equipped with bell-towers, radio and TV stations were solicited to help the campaign.

"I've never in my life seen people take so readily to an idea," Mrs. Hazel Wolfe of the Daughters of Union Veterans said. "And it is such a wonderful idea—to think of Americans all over the nation, stopping at midday to listen to the message of the bells."

State's Amylose Film Patented In 7 Countries

Nebraska now holds patents on its amylose packaging film from the United States and six other nations. State Agriculture Director Pearl F. Finigan said.

The packaging film, developed by the Nebraska Agricultural Experiment Station, is a water-soluble, digestible substance manufactured from high-amylose corn.

Finigan said the foreign patents cover the Nebraska process in Belgium, Chile, Ireland, Colombia, Luxembourg and Spain.

The U.S. patent was applied for in December, 1961, and was granted last March, Finigan said. The foreign patents were filed in October, 1963.

Delivered

Dr. John Barger of the Midwest Research Institute in Kansas City formally delivered the patents to Finigan.

Under the patents, no company can use the Nebraska packaging process without license from the state and its assignee, the American Maize Products Co.

American Maize has a semi-commercial pilot plant for processing the discovery in operation at Central City.

Dr. Barger, who invented the process for Nebraska, said he was particularly pleased the U.S. Patent Office allowed 18 claims on the discovery.

These include modifications of the manufacturing technique and certain plasticizers.

Process Unique

The Midwest Research scientist said the claim allowances prove the Nebraska process is unique and are "important since no one can produce the film within the range of the claims without license from the State of Nebraska."

The process was licensed to American Maize in March, 1964. The Indiana-based company has agreed any film manufactured outside the state would yield royalties to Nebraska.

Finigan said the film has a potential use as a food wrapper and in portion servings in institutional feeding as well as in the pharmaceutical industry.

American Maize can now safely proceed to sell the process for commercial purposes now that complete patent protection has been obtained in this country, he said.

Wheat Crop Brings New Faith

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Potter—It has been a long time since western Nebraska wheat farmers have been so happy. The combination of a good wheat price and the best crop in three years has the farmers taking a new faith in the future of agriculture.

"Yes, you will see a lot of 35 to 38 bushel per acre wheat, and there will be fields that go to 40 or better," said Ray Davis, president of the Nebraska Wheat Growers Association, who farms north of Omaha.

Davis says you can go from Ogallala to Kimball and for miles some distance both north and south of Cheyenne County and find about the same situation as noted on his farms where harvest is about a week away.

Davis credits newly developed wheat varieties for the state by state-federal wheat breeders at the University of Nebraska as being the important factor behind the rust free, high potential yielding fields that stretch across western Nebraska.

Wheat Farmer Aids

In listing the things that would help wheat farmers the Wheat Association president says, "Using a 10 year average on setting yields for next year's wheat program will help even out three recent bad years that hit Nebraska farmers in many counties with a reduction in yield for farm

Hog Market Predicted

Push pigs along for early marketing and plan to market swine at lighter weights this fall in order to avoid price discounts, a University of Nebraska economist advises.

Dr. Everett E. Peterson predicts that the hog market will be mostly steady until mid-July after which prices will decline steadily to a low about Dec. 1. Main price weakness will occur in October and November, he believes.

Unique Equipment On Display July 28

Mead—Equipment used to weigh and meter feeds to form a ration mixture will be a unique feature of the University of Nebraska Tractor Power and Safety Day July 28.

These types of equipment will be on display at the NU Field Laboratory, according to M. L. Mumgaard, extension agricultural engineer.

—Volume measuring equipment, such as augers, belts, vibrators and sliding gates.

—A silage meter which measures by volume.

—Continuous weighing and readout systems.

Along with this specialized equipment for metering and proportioning a ration, other feeding equipment, such as conveyers, bunks, grinders, and roller mills will be on display, Mumgaard said.

Uses Volume

Volume measuring equipment usually uses a known volume of flow over a measured time period. Feeds which are free flowing and vary little in composition are easily measured or metered by volume. Grain or high concentrate rations meet the requirements of free flowing and low variability, the NU specialist stated.

Because silage is not free flowing, the silage meter measures the size of the silage stream and gives a continuous total of the amount of silage passing through the meter. Volume meters lead

Milk Research Needed In Developing Nations

Corvallis, Ore. — The importance of milk and milk products as a source of human nutrition, particularly in overcoming protein deficiency, dictates an urgent need for research and education on these products in developing countries, a University of Nebraska teacher and researcher said here.

Dr. L. K. Crowe, speaking at the annual meeting of the Dairy Science Association, said "the eminent need is to increase the yield of milk from the cow, buffalo or sheep in these developing countries."

Success in this endeavor,

Hogs Need Breathing Room

Omaha — Heat and high humidity which have blanketed the Corn Belt are danger signals for swine being handled or shipped, a livestock safety authority said.

J. C. Rosse, director of information for Livestock Conservation, Inc., pointed out that a hog's normal temperature is around 102 degrees when he is at rest in 100 degree surroundings. He must lose three-fourths or more of his excess body heat through the lungs (breathing), by air he said, hinges on overcoming the low level of nutrition of the animals themselves.

Dr. Crowe termed information on human nutrition and the role of milk and milk products as "fundamental" in the educational program in any developing country.

Improvement Needed

The necessity for improvement in the quality of milk and milk products must be recognized, he said, but added that this can come about only through consciousness of the importance of sanitation.

Wet Surface Soil Doesn't Eliminate Irrigation Need

Hastings — Don't be lulled into false security by wet-appearing surface soil after torrential downpours, such as hit portions of Nebraska recently, a University of Nebraska irrigation expert warned farmers.

Maximum corn and milo yields will require timely irrigation, says H. R. Mulliner, district extension irrigationist. Soil probing in corn and grain sorghum fields in south central Nebraska after the heavy rains showed moisture penetration to a depth of about 12 to 14 inches.

"A shortage of water during the period of silking to tasseling on corn will lower yields more than at any other time during its growing period," Mulliner stated.

If you plan on visiting Harold Stevens, Dawson County extension agent, be sure you eat before you go.

Harold has so much to show that is really outstanding in his county that it is dangerous to accept a 6 a.m. invitation to visit the county and to arrive without breakfast.

When he invited Rolie Graham, chairman of the College of Agriculture Department of Information, Lee Rockwell of Channel 12 and myself to arrive at this early hour we thought it was a breakfast invitation.

Instead Harold was in a hurry to show us scenes that might make good color shots in the valley.

"Dawson County is always like this," said Stevens, as we exclaimed over excellent views of where the cornbelt meets range land.

After a two and a half hour tour we found out why Stevens didn't have time for breakfast. He had a national photographer arriving in Cozad to take a cover page photo of a 4-H club boy with his calf in a Cozad bank.

The many people who know Stevens well will understand how much fun he had telling his hungry visitors, "I wish you could be here tonight, we are having 433 ounces of boned loin and 110 pounds of hamburger for an extension board meeting."

There are a good many counties and the members of the State Fair Board who could benefit by seeing what Dawson County has done in the way of constructing new fair buildings.

For a long time I have heard about Jeffrey Reservoir, the third largest facility in the Central Nebraska Irrigation District.

This week I got a conducted tour of the area by Jim Adams of Brady who added an interesting bit of information: "This is the same area where many bald eagles spend the winter."

For the past several years I have had the opportunity of working close with Ray Davis of Potter, former state ASCS committee member and also the current president of the Nebraska Wheat Growers.

The Davis wheat fields are at about a 5,000-ft. altitude. You can stand any place in this neighborhood and look as far as you can see and see endless miles of wheat alternating with strips of summer fallow land.

I wonder how many Nebraskans know that we have a feedlot in western Nebraska that has 35,000 head of cattle on feed. This provides quite

Kinzli Farm Contains Museum Nobody Sees

By JOHN LEE
Outstate Nebraska Bureau
Duncan—A museum that nobody sees—that's the Kinzli farm near here.

Antique farm and household items that most of the present generation has never seen are tucked away in several buildings or under the trees on the Platte River island. A large cabin of hand-hewn logs has been temporarily protected against deterioration by sheets of metal. Collections of mounted butterflies and birds are seen by only a few appreciative eyes. "The museum's at a standstill," lamented Lindo Kinzli. "I am not able to take care of it properly, so we closed it about a year ago."

No Longer Wanders
The man responsible for most of it, Kinzli's father, Frank, no longer wanders through the maze, proudly explaining items to tourists and local school groups.

The 91 years he has spent collecting, mounting and cataloging have finally caught him in their inevitable grip and greatly curtailed his zoological pursuits.

"He's put a fortune and his whole life into this," noted Lindo, who inherited much of the enthusiasm of his father, a Swiss immigrant.

"He has had an interest in collecting from childhood—still has the first marble he won shooting at school and a picture he got from his first teacher."

"The sheds are full of things, and one room in the house is all birds and butterflies. He mounted his first bird in 1896."

Imports Included
Included are such imported trophies as the lyre bird of Australia, birds of paradise and a Florida whooping crane. Lindo himself has been adding, piece by antique piece, to the growing mass of farm tools stored in the log cabin.

The cabin, built on the spot at the close of the Civil War and the first American home of the Swiss farm family, is still in good shape with its second-floor sleeping quarters and cyclone cellar below.

"I'm looking forward to the time when I can help set up a museum somewhere," said Lindo.

"All this could be the nucleus of a very fine museum, and that's what Dad's always looked forward to."

Party Chairmen Trade Charges

... DEMOCRATS DEFEND PRESIDENT'S VISIT

Nebraska Democrats in Kearney replied to criticism leveled at President Johnson's appearance with Governor Morrison on the banks of the Missouri.

In Fremont later State Republican Chairman Walter Withoff of Fremont called upon his Democratic counterpart, John Mitchell of Kearney, to "face the real issue of whether or not the governor is on the side of fiscal responsibility or whether he is, in fact, on the side of the LBJ spenders."

Mitchell said of Richard W. Smith of Lincoln, "It is indeed strange that Sen. Curtis has chosen a Harvard educated corporation lawyer as his apparent spokesman on agricultural matters."

Smith is chairman of the Nebraska Citizens for Curtis committee.

"This is unfounded criticism," said Mitchell, "is a smokescreen to try to cover up the fact that Sen. Curtis has failed miserably in solving the problems of the farmer."

"He voted against the last farm bill and in the 27 years he has been in Washington there isn't a single piece of farm legislation that carries his name or that he has authored," Mitchell charged.

"He (Curtis) has had an opportunity to perform for the farmer but has failed with his negative vote," Mitchell said.

"Mr. Smith overlooks the fact that during the Johnson administration the price our Nebraska farmers get for cattle, hogs, wheat and corn has greatly improved, and the average net farm income has increased from 2,900 to 4,200 annually," he said.

Withoff said Mitchell is now calling the governor "frugal," but added "the governor's record as the state's chief executive will have little bearing on his performance once the Johnson administration begins to apply the pressure."

"We can only look at the record of Congressman Clair Callan, who has been nothing but a rubber-stamp for the Johnson program, and assume that if we send a Democrat to the Senate of the United States, he'll be forced to act as a rubber-stamp, too. We are over-supplied with this type of representation."

"The fact of the matter is, Mr. Mitchell, that if the governor were to be sent to the Senate, he would vote like an LBJ spender, even though he is trying to portray himself as something else during the campaign. My earlier statement stands unamended," Withoff concluded.

Harlan County Flood Damage Being Studied

By The Associated Press
Harlan and Furnas counties are assessing damages for the recent flood on Sappa and Beaver creeks.

Chairman Emanuel Smolk of the Department of Agriculture emergency committee in Harlan County said the counties probably will seek federal disaster aid in the form of low interest loans.

Harlan County Agent Randall Peterson said machinery, irrigation wells, livestock, fences and crops all were casualties of the flood and of heavy rains.

He said that large amounts of silt deposited on some land will make it non-irrigable. He said the land probably will have to be leveled again.

The water took a heavy toll of corn and milo, Peterson reported. And he said there remains the problem of irrigating grain which survived because irrigation furrows were washed out.

Terraces, dams and other conservation measures were heavily damaged, he said.

Rocket's Red Glare

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

It was nearly 200 years ago in Philadelphia that the stage was set for today, the Fourth of July. On that date in 1776 the Continental Congress adopted the Declaration of Independence. Perhaps they didn't realize at the time the full significance of what they were doing, as the original copy of the manuscript was lost after being given to a printer.

One can almost see the printer, having completed his broadside reproductions, tossing the parchment original into a wastebasket or the fireplace. What a price that original document would bring today! A little more care was exercised with another original—the poem written by Francis Scott Key during the War of 1812, just 30 years after the American Revolution had ended. That poem is still a part of the holdings of the Maryland Historical Society. We wonder how many would recognize it?

The fourth stanza, for instance, is as follows:

"Oh! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and the war's desolation!
Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n rescued land
Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.
Then conquer we must, when our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: 'In God is our trust.'
And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

The last two lines, of course, are a giveaway. Few there are who don't know the first stanza of the Star Spangled Banner—but the last three verses are seldom heard. Today, the Declaration, the Star Spangled Banner and other marks of our heritage are commemorated.

And of course, the Fourth of July is a national holiday, a day for celebration. Assuming, as this goes to print, that weather permits, backyards and patios will be busy places today. Grills and lawn chairs will find a lot of use today and the evening air will become gray with the heavy odor of sulfur. The old days of exploding fireworks have gone the way of high button shoes. There was a time when cherry bombs, salutes and other explosives were a big part of the Fourth of July celebration. Tin cans could be sent 30 and 40 feet into the air with one of those firecrackers and the day was a noisy one from dawn through evening.

Unfortunately, the firecrackers were more than fun; they were dangerous. The count of injuries from lost fingers to lost eyes became so great that the firecrackers were outlawed in most states. Some people still manage to get hold of firecrackers but in shooting them off, run the risk of arrest and a court fine. Satisfaction now must be found in explosives no larger than caps for guns and in the colorful night works.

It is probably just as well from other points of view, too, that the celebration has shifted from explosives to night works. This puts the emphasis on beauty rather than violence. It is hoped that by now, men no longer have much yearning for conflict. When no choice is given, we expect to give no quarter but no test at all would be much preferred.

There is not a war in our past history in which we cannot find pride but none, either, in which you can find much satisfaction. It was wrong that we should ever have had to have the American Revolution, the War of 1812, two World Wars and other conflicts with other nations. How much better it would have been if all the differences that led to these violent clashes could have been settled peacefully.

Some time, in future generations, people will be celebrating the anniversary of peace. Not just peace for the time being but peace for so long as men can remember.

That time is a long way off but it is the goal toward which we are constantly working. The latest force to challenge the achievement of this goal is Communism and perhaps something else will follow that. As we pursue our goal, we must meet these challenges, as we are doing in Viet Nam today, but war can never be but a poor means to an end. What we celebrate today is the conquest of our nation over forces of injustice and intolerance. Thus, we focus on the dignity and humanity of civilization, not power through the force of arms.

Looking To Peace

Wait Until You Hear This

Out in this country, we get about half of our year's supply of rain in the spring and early summer months.

Now and then it will rain three to five inches out of one cloud. Then we have floods and big newspaper stories.

But on looking at world rainfall figures, we must conclude that nature in these parts is a pretty good citizen and spares us from its excesses. Rather than inundating us, it settles for lightning and thunder threats.

Kentucky, for instance, has an annual rainfall expectancy of five feet a year. Mud is an abiding problem there. But that is nothing in regard to record rainfalls. In 1947 the town of Holt, Missouri, received one foot of rain in 42 minutes.

The town of Opid's Camp in dry California got two-thirds of an inch of rain in one minute in 1926.

Those are pretty good records for the United States. But if you want rain, go to Asia. Mostly there they do not keep records. They wash away. But such records as survive are impressive.

In the city of Cheripurji in Assam province, India, thirty feet of rain fell during July, 1961. That averages out one foot a day.

The Philippine resort city of Baguio had a little difficulty with a rain cloud in 1911. It let down 46 inches of rain in one day.

When we figure that eastern Nebraska gets 32 inches in a year, most of the time getting maximum crops while losing topsoil to erosion, we must conclude that nature treats us, most of the time, just right.

Let us not complain too much about the weather.

Truth In Packaging

The truth in packaging bill that has now passed the Senate will find its ultimate test, assuming it makes its way into final law, on the grocery and drug shelves of America. Critics of the bill have assumed a heavy-handed government approach, a dictation to producing in their packaging that will increase the cost of goods to consumers.

That, of course, is always possible but it is not the intent of the legislation nor the intent of the administration. Both Nebraska senators voted against the measure, although they voted for an amendment that failed that would have permitted producers to establish minimum retail prices for their products.

Certainly, such pricing practices, called fair trade, would be a contribution to higher prices by tending to eliminate price competition among retailers. The claim of higher prices as a result of fair packaging is hard to buy.

The new law would bring a greater uniformity and thereby reduce the emphasis placed on merchandising of a product. But a great many practices in the merchandising field have become highly questionable. The new legislation provides, too, for industry participation on a voluntary basis in the formulation of whatever new standards are deemed to be in order.

The intent of the legislation is to bring enough uniformity in package sizes, contents and content statements so as to afford the buyer the opportunity for intelligent judgment. The government will not become a judge of quality, of package design or price legitimacy. It will not assume controls in the fields of production or distribution. The entire effort is aimed at informing the public, at providing sufficient information on a product that an intelligent comparison of products can be made in the market place.

Change In British Currency

NEW YORK — Her majesty's realm is making a fast buck. Legitimately, of course.

Australia has decimalized its currency after much soul-searching. Until that delightful continent sinks back into the sea, it will deal strictly in dollars and cents. Its grateful, lousy-jawed children will never again be cruelly asked to multiply ten pounds, nine shillings and six pence by four guineas, eight shillings and thruppence. In time, the Australians may be more grateful for this mathematical importation than for certain U.S. military aid extended in World War II.

New Zealand will decimalize itself next year, and even Big Casino — the United Kingdom — may in time. The Bahamas went for the buck May 25.

"More easily digested" by modern calculators," harumphed Sir Stafford Sands, Bahamian minister of finance, in announcing a switch which in other times in the history of the empire would have had him thrown into The Tower or at very least denounced in the House of Commons.

It will no longer be a joke if visitors to Nassau characterize someone as "phony as a three-dollar bill." The $3 which has just been issued there is as honest as Nassau's sun and sand. Indeed, the rear of the coral-colored bill is covered with an engraving of Paradise Beach with a loving couple, married, one prays, in the affectionate foreground.

Matter of fact, the British are doing some pretty chancy things with their sacred, if deflated, currency. If this kind of heresy continues, we may have to send troops, bomb Buckingham and provide for a national election that will restore cooler heads to government. Bahama has a square 15 cent coin coming up.

I'm not sure our purists will accept variations from such norms as pictures of public buildings on the backs of bills that carry the dollar sign. For example, the $100 bill that the Bahamas government is about to issue to swarms of U.S. visitors has a deep sea fishing scene. The $20 bill's rear side features a survey with a fringe on top.

Next thing those people will try to do is speak our language, if we're not careful.

Jewish Governor For Pennsylvania?

WASHINGTON—Col. Jack Arvey, one-time political boss of Chicago, telephoned David Lawrence, ex-governor of Pennsylvania, the other day to ask: "Can a Jew be elected governor of Pennsylvania?"

Arvey referred to the campaign of Milton Shapp, who has been nominated as the Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania.

Lawrence, a Democrat and the first Catholic governor of Pennsylvania in history, knows something of the problems of racial intolerance in a political campaign. He replied: "I think he can."

Lawrence went on to tell Arvey of the tremendous impression Shapp made on Catholic voters in the Democratic primary, even though Shapp was running against a Catholic candidate, Robert Casey.

"He put on a documentary film telling about his life," Lawrence said. "He covered everything. It took him from a young Jewish boy in the slums of Cleveland to the building up of his electronics company. It was a real American success story."

Lawrence told how a straw vote had been taken at Cathedral High School in Pittsburgh, a Catholic school, and how Shapp had carried it against Casey.

In the Democratic primary, the Democratic organization had been opposed to Shapp and for Casey. Nevertheless, Lawrence pointed out that not one county chairman, mayor or congressman in charge of the organization campaign had been able to carry the Catholic and Protestant districts. They were carried by Shapp, a Jew.

Shapp is running against Republican Raymond Shafer, now lieutenant governor. The race is so hot that the politicians are wisecracking: "Shafer will have to go to California to take acting lessons from Ronald Reagan."

Rep. Charles Farnsley, D-Ky., the ex-mayor of Louisville, has offered Ralph Nader, the auto safety expert, one of the new administrative assistant jobs recently created by the House.

Nader gratefully turned it down. Too many writing and speaking commitments. People are wondering why the Army chose the front of the Jefferson Memorial to demonstrate tough judo-like war tactics. It's true that Jefferson once said: "The tree of liberty must be refreshed from time to time with the blood of patriots and tyrants. It is its natural manure." But on the whole he was a peaceful man.

Varied Reactions To Viet Nam Bombings

WASHINGTON — Even those long advocating a step-up in the bombing to the area of Hanoi and Haiphong are privately skeptical of what the consequences will be.

The skepticism feeds on the arithmetic of intensive bombing for more than 16 months. At the start in February, 1965, the big bomber boys in the Pentagon were saying that within a few weeks the infiltration of men and material from the north would be stopped and Hanoi would be suing for peace. The rate of infiltration then was an estimated 1,600 a month. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara puts the recent figure at 4,500 to 5,000.

In that interval, with day-to-day bombing, the communists built a two-lane highway, replacing much of what had been a jungle trail. Part of it has been hard-surfaced. McNamara's stellar piece of evidence in the kind of computerized talk that is his specialty in these crises was a reconnaissance photo showing 51 trucks on the road.

The immediate reaction to the newest escalation was predictable. For Sen. J. William Fulbright, the most searching critic of Viet Nam policy, this is one more move closing out a chance for compromise and a settlement of the war short of total destruction of Viet Nam, both North and South. If, as both McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk have said in the past, Hanoi and Haiphong were hostages for Saigon, the capital of South Viet Nam stands now in imminent danger.

At the opposite pole, Sen.

Richard Russell and others of the get-in-or-get-out school say this must be only a beginning.

But, as with everything else in Washington, it comes back finally to the reaction of one man—Lyndon Baines Johnson. In the view of Fulbright and other critics, the President has gone beyond reasonable approach to the war. He has become a passionate crusader, an evangel determined to defeat communism in Asia which means, of course, China. That could be a war measured not in years but in decades.

There is, however, still another perspective on the temperament of the man who makes the final decisions. In the view of fair-minded participants in the maneuvering in recent weeks—themselves opposed to escalation—the President went further than anyone knows to try to get talks started. He tried a variety of channels, both direct and indirect.

After all these efforts, and one is given to believe that they were formidable, Peeking with an echo from Hanoi replied with a harsh rejection.

At the same time the pressure of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and their allies in Congress to extend the bombing never ceased. In his masterful conduct of the Senate as majority leader and now again in his direction of foreign policy, the President does not understand open and avowed opposition. He can overwhelm his critics here at home. But this latest turn of the screw raises some grave questions within the Western Alliance.

ERNST MACH

Profiles In Science

When Ernst Mach was still in his teens he began emulating what he considered to be the most distinguishing mark of the truly scientific investigator: simplicity. He had discovered that the most important works of the most respected men were done economically and directly.

His whole career followed that example.

Mach was born in 1838 in a section of Austria that is now part of Czechoslovakia. His boyhood was spent on his father's farm where his father taught him history, mathematics, geometry and Latin and Greek.

His father did a good job. Mach became one of the most well-rounded men of distinction in the world. His name has gone down in history in the phrase "Mach number," a way of describing speed in excess of sound. "Mach 7" speed is seven times the speed of sound.

Mach is best known today for the term "Mach number," but his contributions in other fields were almost as great and famous. He was a man of enormously wide interests and published papers on thermodynamics, acoustics, the physics of music, photography and physiology among other subjects.

In 1860 he won his doctorate at the University of Vienna where he taught for several years before going to the University of Graz, also in Austria. Then he taught for 23 years at the University of Prague where he became world-famous. Finally, he returned to Vienna where a special professorship in the theory of inductive sciences was created to entice him to return to the faculty. Mach anticipated Einstein and elaborated on Newton by proposing the theory that there is no such thing as absolute time or absolute space and that even these are relative.

The apparent inertia of a body in space is also relative, according to Mach, and depends on that body's relationship to all the other bodies in the universe. The theory was scoffed at but still lives as "Mach's principle."

In 1940 Einstein wrote in an article in Science Magazine that the mechanical role of space was clearly recognized and criticized by Mach before he himself had done so.

In 1887 Mach published a paper on shock waves which included the first photographs ever made of such waves. They were produced by making use of the light created by the passage of artillery shells past the mouth of a bottle charged with gas. The term "Mach number" to denote the force of speed (the force exerted against inertia) was coined in 1929 by a Swiss mathematician-physicist.

Mach died in 1916. Copyright, 1966, Los Angeles Times

NASON ON EDUCATION

Three Problems Ahead For 1970's

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

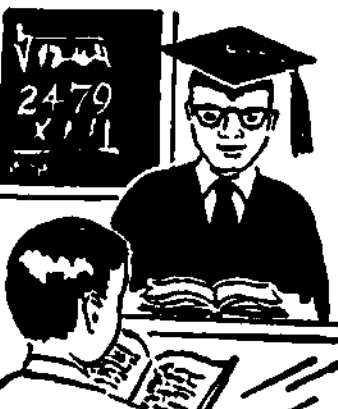

Three problems in the education of youth challenge the elementary schools of the 1970s.

The elementary school is responsible for many school dropouts. Children, often from disadvantaged homes, get off to a poor start, become discouraged in their elementary school years and drop out as soon as the law allows.

The second problem is that many students complete elementary school without gaining sufficient skill in reading and writing to profit by the vocational training offered in high schools. They are neither prepared to take a job nor to be trained for one.

Elementary school curriculums must cover new fields. People must gain practical knowledge of business, industry and commerce.

The president, Earl M. Weber, and the executive secretary-treasurer, Kenneth E. Dawson, of the American Industrial Arts Association, state that the present trend in industrial arts education is to divide the curriculum about evenly between the actual handling of tools and equipment and the gaining of an understanding of our industrial world through reading, movies, field trips and discussions.

They predict that this branch of education will expand to assume great importance and that all pupils will be given added understanding of rapidly expanding industry.

The three problems are interlocked. The dropout problem will, to a great extent, be solved through increased emphasis on pre-school, primary and compensatory education. Pupils will enter the intermediate years better prepared to succeed.

Industrial arts teachers could help a great deal in the solution of the dropout problem. They should make it their business to know the training programs available and the requirements for entry into each.

Donald N. Michael, presently associated with the Institute for Policy Studies, Washington, D.C., states, "The youngster will need help if he is to win a good place in the new technological society."

Although it is not a part of the present plans of The American Arts Association, my personal recommendation is that industrial arts teachers come to know the individual student well enough to counsel him in the selection of an appropriate training program and to point the way for him to gain the necessary skills.

I feel that only through such individual interest and counsel can the tremendous loss that now takes place between the start of school and the entry into industry be reduced.

Face-Lifting Big Business Today

NEW YORK — One of America's most publicized plastic surgeons told me that the best-adjusted women he knows are those women who are ugly . . . and who don't mind being ugly.

"The women I wouldn't touch," said Dr. Robert A. Franklyn of Hollywood, "are the ones who were born ugly and who don't care."

"Why change their faces or their figures? They are happy as they are, and the fact that they don't mind homeliness is a sign that they have the most equitable natures in the world."

But there aren't many girls with such equitable natures, which is why Dr. Franklyn over the years has made a fortune as a nose-bobber, face-lifter, and chest surgeon.

"Women every year are coming around more to the realization that it is no more deceitful or dangerous to change the shape of your nose than to have your teeth capped," he said. "Of course, operating in Hollywood is bigger business than anywhere else. Hollywood is the place where beauty is so important that a plastic surgeon can do an enormous business in taking the bags from under the eyes." (Debagging is big business in most other big cities, too.)

"The circle-removing business," as he put it, required only a few minutes. Movie stars often begin undergoing it at about age 25.

As for nose-bobbing—"that used to be something women whispered about. Large operation, big deal, don't tell mother. But now it's the commonest operation in beauty surgery. It's shorter than a visit to the dentist. Fifteen minutes, and you've got a new nose."

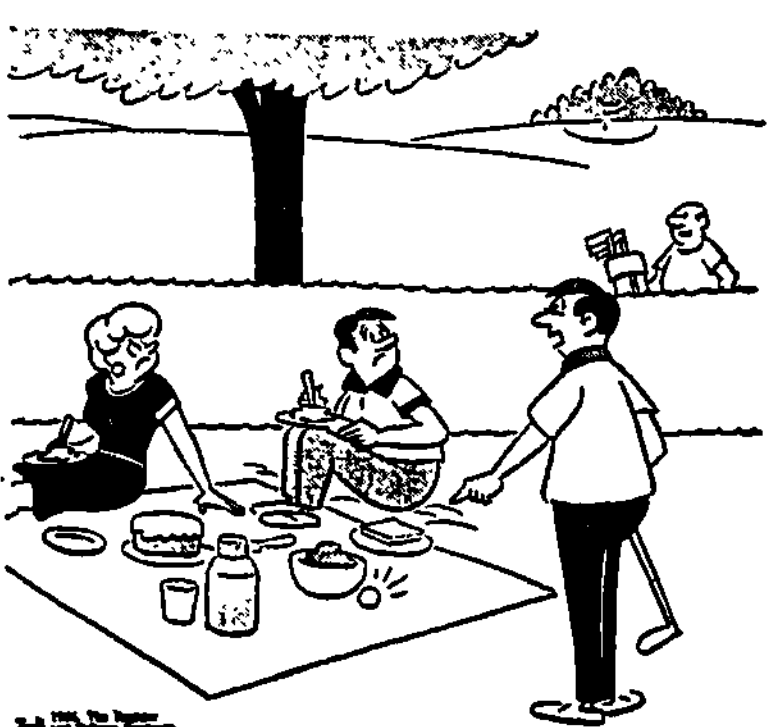

Face-lifting is the second commonest beauty operation in Hollywood, where great-grandmothers dread growing old. Some film stars get their "tightening up" about age 30. The average number of face-liftings per movie career, Dr. Franklyn estimated, is about two to a customer.

"And if you come out to California, you can tell which women have had face lifts by watching me at a party. My customers cut me dead in public, because they don't want their friends to know. At a party, I can hardly find anyone to talk to."

Dress 'Casual, Casual'

... AT NU IN THE SUMMERTIME

By FAYE COLBURN
Star Staff Writer

"Comfortable," was Jack Hennessy's descriptive comment on summer school dress at the University of Nebraska.

"For myself it all depends on the mood I'm in. Sometimes I attend class in a jacket, slacks, the whole bit. Then sometimes I come in grubbies, no socks, teanies, barefoot... I like to walk in the rain barefoot."

"Casual, casual," Annette Lee, a junior at the University, said. "The girls seem to have forgotten stockings exist," she said. "They wear tops that allow their arms and shoulders to become tanned. There's a big thing now about sandals.

"I don't know anything about hairdos," she volunteered. "The winds been so bad we don't have any."

"I've worn shorts to class," Patty Welding, a sophomore said. She and Janet Powers agreed that the type of clothing worn depends on the class, especially on the teachers. "The boys come in cut-offs (blue jeans cut off above the knee)," Powers commented.

"At night we wear dresses," Miss Welding added, "because it's not so hot then."

Linda Roll, a junior, noted that clothing is simple, "sleeveless dresses and sandals."

"The guys wear shorts quite a lot," She grinned. "Some of them aren't bad."

Another expressive junior simply said, "I've seen a little bit of everything, really."

On the idea of girls wearing shorts to classes, Warren Sampson commented, "I have a strong feeling if the girls wore shorts to classes they'd get kicked out." He added, "The boys don't appreciate it."

In general, though, Hennessy, a graduate student, said that the Nebraska campus is more conservative in the summer than other campuses around the country, including the Eastern Ivy League colleges.

World-Wide Protests Follow U.S. Hanoi, Haiphong Raids

By Associated Press

Protests, demonstrations and some violence continued around much of the world Sunday in reaction to U.S. bombing raids on fuel installations at Hanoi and Haiphong. There was more criticism from both official and unofficial sources.

In London, Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart said Britain's support of U.S. policy in Viet Nam did not mean "blanket approval." An estimated 2,000 persons paraded in the center of the city to protest the bombings. Police arrested 27 demonstrators outside the U.S. embassy.

Highlights elsewhere:

New Delhi — Foreign Minister Swaran Singh expressed India's concern and reportedly conveyed a request to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Joseph Greene Jr. that the raids be stopped.

Calcutta — A pro-communist mob hurled stones and a petrol bomb at the U.S. Information Service office before police routed them. No injuries were reported.

Singapore — More than 700 pro-communists battled riot police in a demonstration against "U.S. aggression in Viet Nam."

The Hague Netherlands — About 250 youths handed a protest letter to a guard at the U.S. embassy while chanting: "LBJ, how many kids did you kill today?"

Aalborg, Denmark — Police called in reinforcements to head off expected anti-Viet Nam demonstrations Monday at the annual Danish-American Fourth of July rally. They arrested half a dozen protesters Sunday at the docks where the visiting U.S. destroyers McDonnell and Beatty were tied up for the rally.

Rangoon — The Burmese government announced it deeply regrets the air raids and it "fears this act of escalation might further aggravate international tension."

Havana — The Castro government denounced the attacks as "savage" and said it stood ready to demonstrate its fraternal ties with North Viet Nam "in whatever form is necessary."

Kuala Lumpur — Malaysia's Sunday Times said the air action was one of "questionable wisdom." The Sunday Mail said it feared that "President Johnson may be giving way to brinkmanship in a situation which calls for the strictest self-control."

Sen. Hughes' Aunt, Mrs. Segrist, Dies

Mrs. Emaline Elizabeth Segrist, 86, of Humboldt died Sunday. She was the maternal aunt of State Sen. Mrs. Calista Cooper Hughes. Funeral services will be 10 a.m. Tuesday at Wherry's Chapel in Humboldt. Survivors include a son, Edward L. of Kansas City, Mo.; two grandchildren, and Mrs. Hughes.

Warsaw — The Polish Communist Party daily Trybuna Ludu: "... so far the Johnson administration has taken an attitude which cannot be described otherwise than as full of contempt toward her own allies, world public opinion and her own community."

$16,000 Received In Three Grants For Wesleyan

Nebraska Wesleyan University has received three grants totaling more than $16,000 under the Higher Education Facilities Act.

The largest was an $8,059 matching grant for equipment and materials to improve undergraduate instruction. Tom Sieg, assistant director of development, said the money will be used for construction of a $16,000 language laboratory.

Another matching grant of $5,000 was received under the college library resources program. Sieg said this grant will go for additional library materials.

NWU also received $3,711 for upgrading and training of young professors in the humanities and social sciences. The program will operate in cooperation with the University of Nebraska.

U.S. Ships Watch French Shell Area

Papeete, Tahiti (AP) — Two American warships, an American plane and probably an American submarine were collecting information on Saturday's explosion of a French atomic device, French sources said Sunday.

The device was planted on a barge anchored about 90 feet from the shore of a lagoon on Mururoa Atoll. The explosion was heard and a flash of light was seen in the Gambia Islands 270 miles from the site. The mushroom cloud was observed from a French plane 40 miles away.

A French plane landed at Mururoa Airport, about 12 miles from the blast site, eight hours after the explosion. Official sources said this proved there was little radioactivity in the area.

Warships

The American warships cruising on the perimeter of the danger area were identified as the Belmont and the Richfield. French sources said a submarine was spotted from the aircraft carrier Foch, and was presumed to be American although she submerged after being sighted. An American plane identified as a KC135 — a four-jet tanker plane — also was seen by French officials.

The officials said there were no ships from any other nationality in the area.

Newsmen were not permitted to witness the explosion, but some details were brought back to Papeete by Jacques Tauraa, president of the Polynesian Territorial Assembly, and two other members of the assembly.

Security Light

These men said the blast was scheduled for dawn Friday — 24 hours earlier than it actually exploded — but that it was called off just four seconds before firing time because a security light indicated something was amiss.

In view of protests by Pacific and South American nations in advance of the test, French officials set up an elaborate program for checking on radioactivity to assure everyone there was no danger.

Buoys were set out in the danger zone to radio back information of radioactive fallout. Tests will be made on Flora and Fauna in the islands of Polynesia to make sure there is no health hazard. Fish, especially varieties which make long migrations, such as tuna, will be carefully checked.

No Contact Heard From Pacifist Ship

Sydney, Australia (UPI) — A spokesman for a group of pacifists who allegedly sailed a 50-foot ketch into the area of the French nuclear tests said Sunday he had received no word from the boat since it embarked.

American citizen Lloyd Wilkie, who said he was the publicity officer of a group called the Committee Against Atomic Testing had claimed Friday that the ketch, with nine persons aboard, had sailed for the Mururoa Atoll in the Pacific to protest the French detonation of a nuclear bomb.

He said the ketch, the "Humanity" was carrying three Australians, a Fijian, a Frenchman, an American nurse, two New Zealanders and a Russian-born woman. It had no radio aboard, according to Wilkie.

The radio was left out as part of a predetermined plan to sail the boat into the test area secretly, announce it was there, and then remain incommunicado so it could not be warned away.

Mid-July All-Farm Index Unchanged From Year Ago

By United Press International
The mid-July all-farm index at 287 was unchanged from a month ago, although it stood at two points above last year's mark at this time, the State-Federal Division of Agriculture Statistics said.
Most livestock prices were steady or lower but the index was offset by the higher prices paid for wheat and beans, the division said.

In mid-June Nebraska farmers received $1.51 for a bushel of wheat, up 11 cents from a month ago and 25 cents over the price in June of 1965.
Corn was selling for $1.21 a bushel, two cents less than a year ago. Oats remained at 66 cents a bushel for the third straight month and barley and rye were moving at 96 cents a bushel.
Dry beans declined 40 cents during the month to average $7.70 per hundredweight, but were 70 cents higher than a year ago.

Soybeans advanced 16 cents to reach $2.93 a bushel, the highest since August of 1954.

Nebraska ranchers received an average of $23.70 per hundredweight for cattle in June, 90 cents less than in May and a dime under a year ago.

Calves at $27.10 were down $1.50 from May but up $3.10 from a year ago.

prices were down slightly to an average of 25.2 cents a dozen. Wholesale milk brought $3.70 per hundredweight in both May and June.

Sheep were bringing $5.70 a hundredweight, 30 cents less than in May but a dime over a year ago. Lambs at $23 were $2 off from last month.
Chickens at nine cents a pound were a bit off. Egg

Marsh: Parole And Pardon Avenues Must Be Explored

By DENNIS J. OPATRY
United Press International

A member of the state board of pardons and paroles said Nebraska must explore new avenues to ease inmates of the State Penal Complex into society.

Secretary of State Frank Marsh said there are at least four other proven roads that allow convicts to regain their individuality in life other than through a parole or outright pardon.

"There are at least six programs for use at the Penal Complex," Marsh said. "In Nebraska we're only using two of them."

Marsh said the program he would favor instituting would be the so-called "work release" route.

Prior To Parole

He said under this plan, a convict is permitted to leave the Penal Complex to seek a job for himself prior to the time his name would come up for parole.

"This establishes his tie with the community earlier than would be accomplished by the present parole plan," Marsh said.

He said with a job already lined up, the inmate would in most cases also be in a better position to support his family after he gains his freedom.

"It lessens the shock to the inmate," he said. "It will ease him back into life and helps him assume the burdens of responsibility."

Under the plan, Marsh said, the inmate would leave the institution on weekends, or perhaps during the week, but he must return to the institution at night.

There are no provisions for him to visit his family while outside the brick walls.

Better To Return

Marsh said in most instances it is better for the individual to return to the Penal Complex, "so he isn't free to get into trouble."

Another proposal the state should study, he said is the so-called "furlough."

"Under this idea the man is permitted to leave the complex on weekends and visit his family," Marsh said.

"I think the best combination would have the work-release program start earlier and after a man establishes his behavior, then he can envision the possibility of a furlough, like one weekend a month," he said.

Marsh called the plan "an imperceptible program" of slipping the inmates—rehabilitated and ready to begin life anew—back into normal life.

$5 A Day

"I feel since Nebraska is investing $5 a day in every man to keep him in the complex that the state has enough invested that we should consider a conditional release program also," he said.

Channel Buoys Unused

Bombay (AP) — Three years ago, the port of Bombay bought 20 channel markers but they are still unused because the port has not been able to get government permission to spend $26,666 to fit them with flasher lights.

Under this plan the convict is released perhaps 90 days before his sentence is completed or his name appears on the parole list.

If he walks a straight line for that period, Marsh said he is granted his freedom by whatever means he would have anyway.

However, if he fails, the good time he accrued while in jail is lost and he begins his sentence again.

Marsh said the Penal Complex would always work in close harmony with the sentencing judge before permitting a convict to follow the road of a release program.

He said he is preparing to talk with the legislature's Budget Committee on the matter, either to ask for funds to begin new programs or for money to start in search of a plan which can be adapted to the Nebraska situation.

"Our penal system is unsophisticated and we can do more in Nebraska to effectively deal with our prisoners," he said.

Krivosh: Stop Hiding In Brush, Tiemann

Lancaster County Democratic Chairman Norman Krivosh Sunday called upon Wau-sa banker, Norbert Tiemann to stop hiding in the underbrush and display the leadership qualities which he claims to possess.

The chairman said, "Before the Supreme Court rendered its decision in the tax case, Mr. Tiemann, in an effort to avoid facing up to the issues, said he would wait until the court had rendered its decision. Having now rendered its decision, Tiemann continues to avoid the issue by waiting until after the election."

"Now is the time," he said, "when the people of the State of Nebraska look to the candidates for leadership in pointing out to the citizens what position should be taken in the November election. "If Tiemann refuses to make his tax position known until after the election, the voters must conclude that, either he has no position or does not have the courage of his convictions."

THE SEASON'S spotlight is turned on attractive brides

In Suburbia

The wedding of Miss Mary Cecilia Morrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Philip Morrow, and Ens. Lawrence J. Arth, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Arth, took place Saturday morning, July 2, at Blessed Sacrament Church. The ceremony was solemnized at 11 o'clock by Msgr. A. J. Kraemer.

Sheath frocks of dotted Swiss over taffeta in the maize tone were worn by Miss Sally Morrow, as her sister's maid of honor; the bridesmaids, Mrs. S. T. Miller, Cedar Falls, Iowa, and Mrs. William Wright, Durham, S.C.; the bridesmaids, Miss Patty Morrow, Miss Peggy Arth, Miss Pat Jern, Hastings, and Miss Kay Cronin, Grand Island; and Miss Kathy Sue Morrow, the junior bridesmaid.

David Zweig served Ens. Arth as best man, and the corps of ushers included S. T. Miller, Cedar Falls, Iowa; Bill Arth, Mike Morrow, Tom Findley, Dick Rademacher, Gary Sup and Jim Sullivan.

The bride selected white silk organza over taffeta for her wedding gown. Peau d'ange lace embroidered with seed pearls framed the rounding neckline and edged the brief sleeves of the bodice, and the lace was repeated above deep horizontal tucks banding the slender skirt, which was completed by an aisle-wide train of the organza. Her veil of multiple tiers of silk illusion was held by a cluster of jeweled lace and organza petals.

The couple will reside in Hawaii, where Ens. Arth is stationed with the Navy. Both are graduates of the University of Nebraska, where Mrs. Arth is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. The bridegroom's fraternity is Beta Theta Pi.

Wedding In Sweden

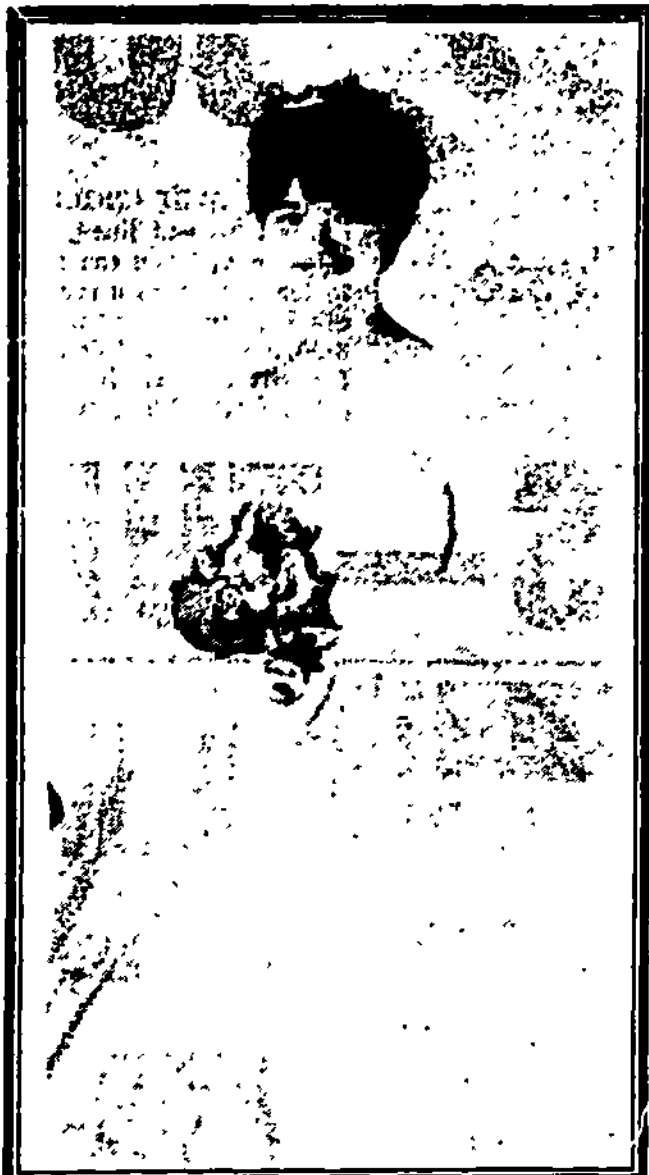

The marriage of Miss Agneta Anderhagen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Anderhagen of Lidings, Sweden, to Dr. John Youngren Donaldson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Donaldson of Lincoln, was solemnized Saturday afternoon, June 18, at Lidings.

Miss Christina Anderhagen attended her sister as maid of honor, and the bridesmaid was Miss Gerd Askvik of Stockholm.

Serving Dr. Donaldson as best man was Lars Strandh of Stockholm, and seating the guests were Cadet Anders Wernersson of Nora, Sweden; Bengt Anderhagen and Kurt Knecht, Stockholm.

The bride wore a gown of white Italian silk designed in the princess mode. She completed her ensemble with a traditional gold bride's crown, and carried a cascade arrangement of red roses and valley-lilies.

Dr. and Mrs. Donaldson will make their home in Lincoln, at 4818 Sumner, where the bridegroom, who received his degree in June from the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, is serving his internship at Bryan Hospital. A member of Phi Chi fraternity, he is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and former student at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass. The bride is a graduate of Palmgrenska Samskolan in Stockholm, Sweden.

Miss Darla Delle Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dean, became the bride of John Harvey Lanz, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Lanz, at a candlelight service solemnized Sunday evening, July 3. Elder Dale Hannah read the lines of the 7:30 o'clock ceremony at the College View Seventh-Day Adventist Church, and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Charles Vyskacil, organist, who also accompanied Miss Marian Beck, the vocal soloist.

Wearing long-skirted frocks of embossed peau de soie in the pink-rose shade were Mrs. Richard Dean of Denver, the matron of honor; Mrs. Leslie Dean, Littleton, Colo., the bridesmaid; and the bridesmaid, Miss Jennifer Zeelau. They carried rounded bouquets of frock-toned glamelias.

Re-embroidered Alencon lace in the rose motif trimmed the bride's gown of white silk chiffon over taffeta. The lace edged the portrait neckline of the long-sleeved bodice, and the skirt of extreme fullness was draped into a modified bustle and continued into a chapel train. Her silk illusion veil was held by a pearl crown, and she carried an arrangement of white glamelias shading to deep pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Lanz will live in Lincoln at 1012 So. 30th. The bridegroom is a student at Union College.

NFWC Program

When the state officers and board of directors of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs met recently in Lincoln, plans for the organization's program for the next two years were developed.

The state organization chose as a state-wide program theme, "Cherish The Past—Challenge The Future."

In an effort to promote a greater awareness and appreciation of the community in which we live—and of the State of Nebraska which celebrates its centennial next year—the state federation's clubs will concentrate activities on citizenship, friendliness, community cooperation and intelligent civic interest.

State officers conducting the board meeting were Miss Ruth Ebmeier, Laurel, president; Mrs. L. B. Myers, York, first vice president; Mrs. Ervin Watkins, Venango, second vice president; Mrs. Don Kolterman, Seward, third vice president; Mrs. Laurence Dillard, Blair, secretary; Mrs. Paul Ehlers, Alliance, treasurer; Mrs. Robert Rake, Omaha, director of juniors.

Representing the federation's six districts were the following presidents: Mrs. Fred Nabert, Syracuse; Mrs. John A. Flynn, Omaha; Mrs. Duane Clatanoff, Howells; Mrs. Roy Hinds, Davenport; Mrs. Will Sindt, Franklin; and Mrs. L. H. Wilke, Ravenna, who is first vice president of the Sixth District. Mrs. Dale Newsham, Lincoln, and Mrs. Dale Yates, Seward, district directors of juniors, also attended.

State chairman present were Mrs. Robert A. Johnson, Alliance; Mrs. Harley McCoid, Lincoln; Mrs. Darrel Braun, Meadow Grove; Mrs. Keith Shultz, Superior; Mrs. W. T. Hughes, Gretna; Miss Mary Nichols, Brock; Mrs. Walter Lammi, Stanton; Mrs. Earl Strong, Aurora; Mrs. H. C. Hanna, Superior; and Mrs. William H. Hasebroeck, West Point, immediate past president of the General Federation.

Plan to attend our bridal show Saturday

You're invited to attend our bridal show, Brides Beautiful, Saturday, July 9 at 2 P.M. in the fifth floor auditorium. We'll have refreshments and participation prizes for our guests. Join us, won't you?

Whether traveling for a special Fourth of July celebration, a family reunion, or just for the fun of it, suburban residents have been going places and today's news consists of those who have used vacation time for travel and are home once again to relax. And the younger generation shares the spotlight, too, as campers—both the coming and the going variety—keep up the summer pace.

KESSLER HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Niebuhr and their seven month-old son, Kent, returned home Sunday after a 10-day vacation trip to the Ozarks. The southward point was chosen because of the Niebuhr's love of water sports. So naturally, most of their time was spent boating, fishing and just soaking up the sun.

KIMBERLY HEIGHTS

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Hergenrader return today from a weekend in Waterloo Iowa. The purpose of the trip was to spend the holiday with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Krantz and their four children.

On Sunday, June 24, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Phelps gathered to help them celebrate their 22nd wedding anniversary. Those attending the evening picnic were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrus and their daughter, Judy, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Berck and DeAnn, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Stoll and their family and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Duden and family.

A reunion of the Class of '41, Jackson High School meant dinner and dancing at Easthills for returning class members, among them, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gorham. The former high school friends and their offspring gathered at Pioneers Park for refreshments on Sunday. The Gorhams attended the second event, too, but minus their son Rick who left that day with his Boy Scout Troop for camping in Humboldt.

Sunday ceremonies

At a late afternoon ceremony solemnized Sunday, July 3, Miss Barbara Kay Ketelsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Ketelsen, became the bride of Herbert C. Griess, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Griess of Omaha. The Rev. Lawrence Stanton read the lines of the 4 o'clock service at First-Plymouth Congregational Church.

Empire frocks of silk crepe in pastel blue were worn by Mrs. Kenneth Knothe of Burnas, Ore., as the matron of honor; and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Rodney Anderson and Mrs. William Adams.

Serving Mr. Griess as best man was Rodney Anderson, and seating the guests were Norman D. Olsen and Herman L. Hibbler, both of Omaha.

Designed in the princess mode, the bride's gown of white satin was touched with re-embroidered Alencon lace dotted with seed pearls. The lace outlined the crescent neckline of the long-sleeved bodice, and below the pointed Elizabethan waist, the skirt of controlled fullness repeated the lace appliques above diagonal tucks, which also added hemline width to the cotillion train. A cap of jeweled lace petals and loops held her circular, illusion veil, and she carried a cascade of white orchids and ivy.

The bridegroom is a June graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Engineering. Mrs. Griess has attended the University of Nebraska.

The chancel of the First Methodist Church at Ogallala was decorated with white and blue-tinted chrysanthemums against a background of jade trees for the Sunday, July 3, wedding of Miss Mary Lynn Schwenker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Schwenker, and Larry Lee Callen, son of Mrs. Creath Callen, and the late Mr. Callen, all of Ogallala. The service was solemnized at 7:30 o'clock by the Rev. Homer Dickerson.

Mrs. D. D. Boesinger of Ames, Iowa, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Marilyn Callen, Lincoln, and Miss Connie Fenwick, Denver, wore sheaths of candlelight linen.

Serving as best man was Kirk Arterburn of Ogallala, and the ushers were the bridegroom's brothers, Max Callen and Jim Callen, Ogallala; Rod Kehl, Lodgepole; Fred Staehr, York; Ron Wall, North Platte; Tim Johnson, Gothenberg; and Barry Sherman, Kearney.

The bride appeared in a sheath gown of white silk linen. The Empire basque was designed with elbow sleeves cuffed in Venise lace, and the lace bordered the slender skirt, which was completed by a detachable, panel train of the linen. Her train-length veil of illusion was caught to the head in a pouf drape by a cluster of jeweled organza petals, and her cascade bouquet of white orchids and ivy was frilled with lace trimmed with her mother's, her paternal and maternal grandparents' wedding rings.

be interested in what is what

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Neither my husband nor I wears a wedding ring. He insists that I wear mine all the time, altho he hasn't worn his for two years. At the same time he is holding my diamond engagement ring for "security" reasons, as he claims it is HIS property in case we separate. Is that true? Legally, I mean? I haven't seen that ring in nearly three months now. I would appreciate your opinion.

SICK MARRIAGE
DEAR SICK: If you want to know whose property the diamond ring is, ring up a lawyer. The important issue here is not whose is whose, but what is what.

DEAR ABBY: We four girls work in an office with five men. One of them (the boss) insists on shaving every morning with an electric shaver as he sits at his desk which faces all of us.

We find this disgusting and crude. He says there is nothing wrong with it. What is your opinion of this practice?

DECORUM FORUM
DEAR FORUM: I think it's crude, too. But he's the boss, so it would be rather difficult to short circuit his connections.

DEAR ABBY: The lady I babysit for owes me for 44 times at 35 cents an hour. I usually sit for seven hours at a time. I keep sitting for her because the lady in the apartment below her has me watch her kids, too. (They are older, and all I have to do to do is look in on them every hour.)

The downstairs lady pays me everytime but the lady upstairs keeps putting me off. Whenever I mention to her how much she owes me she says she is in a big hurry, and then she runs out the door. I am getting the idea that she isn't ever going to pay me. Can you tell me how to get my money, Abby? I need it for Christmas gifts.

GYPPED
DEAR GYPPE: The next time the lady asks you to babysit, tell her how much she owes you and ask her for a little down on a big bill. Then tell her that unless she pays you something, you will not sit for her again. (And stand firm!)

DEAR ABBY: Last April I entertained a group of women in my home for lunch and bridge. I am from out of state and knew none of these women. The group was set up by a woman who arranges such "clubs" so newcomers can get acquainted. I liked these women, but immediately after that luncheon I missed a small glass container which held toothpicks.

No great value money-wise, but it belonged to my dear mother, who is now deceased. It meant so much to me. Abby, I've never had anything like this happen before and am praying that the person took it will mail it back to me. It would take away the hurt and disappointment. Thank you.

CLEARWATER, FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if your husband bought you a large bottle of the very same cologne you discarded years ago because he told you he hated it so much I took it back after Christmas, remembering what he had said about the first bottle. I thought I was doing him a favor, but he said I had done an ungracious thing, and now I am in the doghouse.

HURT
DEAR HURT: You did what any sensible, considerate wife would have done. Your husband is an unreasonable man. Invite him into the doghouse and tell him you have a bone to pick with him.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Chapel Service

The Wesley Foundation Chapel on the University of Nebraska campus was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli and coral-toned carnations on Sunday afternoon, July 3, for the wedding of Miss Jacqueline Patak, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Patak of Pleasant Dale, and Patrick Norris, son of Mrs. Lela Norris of Coshocton, Ohio, and of D. Lee Norris of Fresno, Ohio. The lines of the ceremony were read by the Rev. Bruce McSpadden at 5 o'clock.

Wearing a frock of coral crepe in the daytime mode was Mrs. Dolyn Meinke of Biloxi, Miss., the bride's only attendant.

Dolyn Meinke of Biloxi, served Mr. Norris as best man, and the groomsman was Dennis Hoising of Carroll, Iowa.

For her wedding, the bride chose an after-five gown of silk crepe in the ivory shade, overlaid with antique-toned Alencon lace. She carried a cascade of white sweetheart roses and gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris left for Mississippi City, Miss., where the bridegroom is stationed at Keesler Air Force Base.

Final contract — four spades played by South.
Opening lead — queen of hearts.

It is an ancient privilege accorded to kibitzers and irate partners alike to point out, after play is completed, how declarer should have played and made the hand he has just finished butchering.

In fact, I have it on good authority that this right to criticize declarer's play and call attention to his inadequacy after all 52 cards are seen, was one of the pledges exacted from King John at Runnymede when he finally agreed to sign the Magna Charta in 1215.

Whether this is true or not I do not know, but that the practice of double-dummying partner and instructing him in the fine points of the game still goes on, no one would dare gainsay.

All of which leads us to today's hand where kibitzer, butcher, declarer and instructor are all challenged to make 10 tricks with spades as trump.

This is strictly a double-dummy problem, which means that the reader is invited—nay urged—to examine all four hands and take full advantage of seeing the opponents' cards. Best defense is assumed.

To get right to the meat of the matter, all you have to do to make the contract is win the heart lead with the ace, being careful to drop the king on the ace!

This extraordinary play, whereby you voluntarily increase the number of losers from four to five, permits the hand to be made. You cannot make the contract unless you play the A-K of hearts on the first trick.

You then draw three round of trumps, cash the minor suit aces, and play a heart. West has to win the trick, and having only hearts left, leads two more rounds of hearts which you let him win, discarding two diamonds from dummy and two clubs from your own hand.

Then you claim the balance, since two diamonds can be ruffed in dummy and two clubs in your hand.

Picnic

A family picnic honoring a visitor to Lincoln, Mrs. Darrell Nelson, was held Friday evening — most appropriately — at Tyrrell Park.

The guest of honor will be remembered as the former Tina Tyrrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem T. Tyrrell, and the hostess for the evening was Mrs. Nelson's grandmother, Mrs. Del Tyrrell, for whose late husband the park was named.

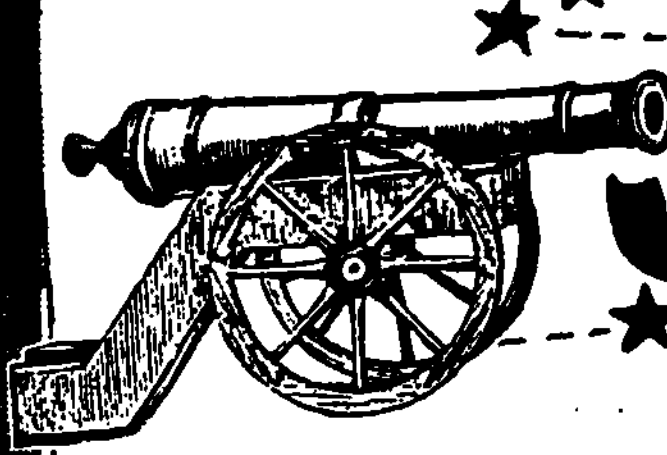

Mrs. Nelson and her sons, Scott and Shawn, will make their home with her parents while her husband, Sgt. Darrell Nelson, USMC, is serving in Vietnam.

Farmer Drops Literacy Program Idea

Baltimore (AP)—James Farmer, former national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, attacked the federal government's war on poverty Sunday night, and said he was withdrawing a proposal for a national cooperative literacy program.

Farmer told about 200 persons at CORE's national convention here that he had wired Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, informing him that he was withdrawing a proposal for a nonprofit organization to conduct such a program.

The former CORE director said he told Shriver: "You have not funded it... worse, you have failed to turn it down."

Farmer termed this "another broken promise to the millions outside the mainstream."

He said the war on poverty

"lacks a master plan" and has "failed to make any change in the life of the ghetto dweller."

Farmer said that if America "waged war in Southeast Asia in the same way as it does the war on poverty, in two weeks we would be driven into the sea."

He said that the poor, not only Negroes, are being driven "into a sea of joblessness, unemployment, slum housing and illiteracy."

He said that unless "people are educated to deal with these things" the goals we will achieve "in the field of civil rights will be of little value."

Unwilling

The former CORE leader said the war on poverty has "failed to deal meaningfully with the growing illiteracy problem" and has been "unwilling to implement the maximum feasible participation of the poor."

Urging that CORE "use non-violence as its tactic in demonstrations," Farmer said he thought the term "black power" "has been misinterpreted."

Farmer said the Negro has the right to defend himself, but to him real "black power" is what can be accomplished when the Negro community organizes politically and economically.

Kansas Patients Riot Quelled

Larned, Kan. (AP)—Release of seven hostages and a conference with penal and hospital authorities ended a tense 7½-hour uprising by 11 patients at the State Security Hospital for Insane Criminals here early Sunday.

Authorities reported the outbreak of rioting started at 9:15 p.m. Saturday when the rebellious inmates grabbed seven psychiatric aides in a recreation lounge of the Dillon Building on the hospital grounds, broke windows, smashed chairs and yelled for food.

The inmates brandished weapons of mops, broken furniture, and bottles of cleaning fluid as they barricaded themselves with the hostages in the west wing on the second floor of the building.

Later in a conference between the officials and prisoners, the inmates aired their personal grievances concerning how their ward was being run. The officials promised them they would be investigated.

MAN CHARGED FOR EFFORTS

Philadelphia (AP)—Patrolman John Gunning, directing traffic, stroled over Sunday when he noticed a man removing a battery from a car parked nearby in the city's 100-plus heat.

"Hot work," said Gunning. "Sure is," the man agreed. "Need any help?" Gunning offered.

"No," said the man. "I'm just trying to get this battery out so I can have it recharged."

"Maybe you had better come with me," said patrolman Gunning. "That happens to be my car."

The man, identified as Philip Atterson, 38, was charged with burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods.

Census Reported

Tokyo (UPI)—The justice ministry reported Japan's population as of March 31 was 100,554,894.

Witch Weaving Spell On Burglar

St. Louis, Mo. (AP)—Friends of Dame Sybil Leek, a British witch, may be a little nervous that she is lingering so long in the city. They gave a party Saturday night and raised nearly $200 for her departure.

Dame Sybil, 43, prefers jetliners to brooms. However, a thief ransacked her motel room Wednesday and stole three magic rings and her money, $450, contained in a purse given to her by Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond.

"I even had a strong premonition something terrible was going to happen to me that day," the high priestess of the New Forest Coven, an English witch district, said.

Lurking Crash

She canceled a scheduled plane flight to Britain, thinking there might be a crash lurking in her future. Instead, the burglar struck.

"If I had really concentrated on my premonition, if I hadn't been so tired, I know I would have stopped that thief," she said.

"That awful man doesn't know how much he's going to regret picking on my room to rob, you know," said Dame Sybil, who now lives in Los Angeles, Calif.

She disclosed that nearly all of America's 400 witches, who she said wield more power than the mafia, have already been in contact with her—some by letter, some by telephone and some by telepathy.

"I'm weaving a terrible hex on that man," she said. "It's been 20 years since I've felt this vicious and the hex I conjured then was so terrible I won't even tell you about it."

All Hellishness

The unsuspecting burglar has about 25 days to return the loot, Dame Sybil said. If he fails to do so, all hellishness will break loose, she said.

Her threats may not be altogether mute. Dame Sybil, formerly employed by an independent British television studio, said, "One day I even wrote about a plane crash—without an error—several minutes before it really happened."

Dame Sybil, who calls herself a happy sorceress, foresees leaving St. Louis by the middle of the week—with or without her lost articles.

"I simply must get to Ireland by July 17 to begin making a film on modern Irish ghosts and haunted houses," she explained.

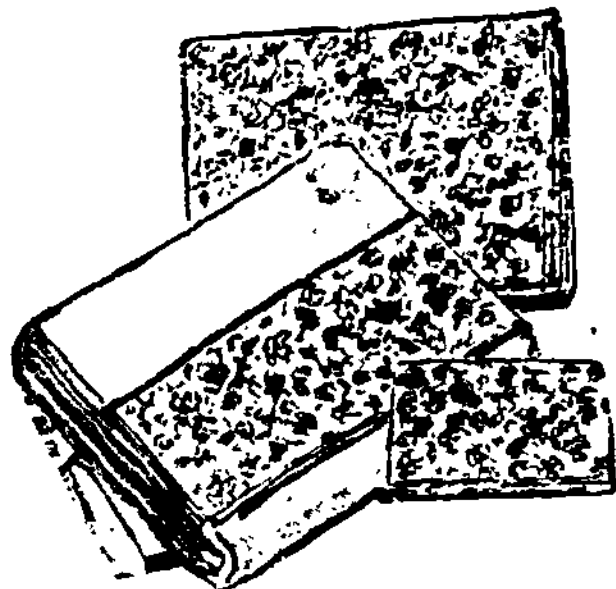

"You see, it's really a fine idea... even witches must have a new angle to get along," she brightly concluded.

Demos, GOP Criticized

... AT PATRIOTIC PARTY CONVENTION

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — Democrats, Republicans, communists, socialists, "one-worlders" and internationalists came under fire Sunday at the national organization convention of the Patriotic Party.

Robert Depugh of Norborne, Mo., head of the militant rightwing Minutemen, presided at the opening session attended by more than 200 people.

The Rev. Kenneth Goff of Denver, who said he was not a "pink-panty" preacher, said he believed there was a "rising current of patriotism" in the United States.

Ex-Communist Goff, who described himself as a former communist, denounced the "bureaucratic dictatorship" in Washington and said there was little difference in the Democratic and Republican Parties.

"You can vote for one party or the other and you get a one-worlder or an internationalist," Goff said.

Goff said he had hoped that Barry Goldwater would unite Americans "that refused to bow-down" but the former Arizona senator "dropped the ball before he reached the goal" and failed to assert leadership after his overwhelming defeat in the 1964 presidential election.

Goff said he didn't understand why the U.S. sends "the cream of American youth and bulk of American dollars to rice paddies of Viet Nam to fight communism while we stand idly by and do nothing to stop it at home."

Loud Applause

Goff drew loud applause when he said, regarding the suggestions that communism is different in China from that of the Soviet Union, that "communism is communism and the only good communists are those that are dead."

A speaker who Depugh said preferred to remain anonymous urged the audience to "never make a statement he can't back up. This is a mistake so many patriots make—they pull the rug out from under you and make you look silly and discredit the whole pro-American anti-communist movement."

Depugh said the name of the speaker, who wore a white suit and sun glasses was not important "but what he says is."

Depugh said the overriding question was whether those "who gave their lives that we might be free" did so in vain.

The answer, he said, was in the convention slogan: "To the restoration of our constitutional republic, to the defense of individual freedom, and to the preservation of our American heritage we pledge our lives, fortunes and sacred honor."

Organizational meetings at the convention were scheduled again Monday. Depugh said six national conventions in various sections of the U.S. were planned August 6-7.

Negroes, Whites Find Empty Pool

Cordele, Ga. (AP) — A group of approximately 100 whites and Negroes arrived at Veterans State Park Sunday to find the swimming pool mysteriously drained.

Horace Caldwell, director of state parks, told the group that it would take 12 to 14 hours to fill the pool but that it would be open for the July 4 holiday.

Between 40 and 50 state patrolmen and deputies were on hand at the park where violence between the races last week led to a dusk-to-dawn curfew for this middle Georgia town.

Caldwell told the group that they should be ashamed that so many patrolmen had to be at the park and that six persons may lose their lives on state highways over the weekend because the patrolmen were diverted.

Exchange Student Compares Ankara, Lincoln

Lincoln has been compared to the city of Ankara, Turkey, in a letter by a York girl who is visiting that country as an International Farm Youth Exchange student.

She is Judy Moore, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Moore of York. Miss Moore's father, Keith, died about a year ago, according to H. H. Kendall, 1711 D, who gave Miss Moore's letter to The Star. Kendall got the letter from Miss Moore's mother.

"A walk down the main street in Ankara, Ataturk Boulevard, reminds one of walking down O Street in Lincoln. The street is filled with buses, taxis, motor scooters, and cars. (not too many of the 1966 models) plus trolleys and dolmuses, which are the cheapest form of transportation," Miss Moore said in her letter.

"A hint of old Turkey," she continues, "can be seen every now and then as one sees a little horse drawn cart filled with water jugs or loaves of bread."

Traffic Signals

While Lincoln and Ankara may be similar in appearance as to wide sidewalks, busy streets and many shops, one area in which the two differ is in traffic signals.

There is one stop light in the city," Miss Moore's letter said.

"Though we anticipated a less rapid pace of living, we have found that people hurry to and fro as rapidly as we do. The women are dressed in wool suits with high heels and gloves, while the men who are educated are always seen in suits and ties.

"Though similarities to the United States are many, differences do exist. On the side streets one is more apt to see the women in their long skirts and scarves or veils. The men are also dressed in what appears to be their work clothes.

Cross On Heads

"There are men and boys hurrying about with large trays of simits (a cross between a donut and a pretzel) on their head, or carrying trays filled with glasses of tea. One difference which we enjoy very much is the vegetation.

"The city is filled with trees and flowers. The lilac bushes along the sidewalks are now in bloom and certainly remind one of home. There is a constant murmur from the newsstands which again reminds one of the United States.

"One difference is that we, as of yet, are unable to understand what they are saying. Though we don't understand their language, the spirit of Ankara and Turkey has been communicated to us by a hearty handshake and a friendly smile," Miss Moore concluded.

China Forum Cost Covered By S&H Fund

A Forum on China planned for next fall at Nebraska Wesleyan University has been underwritten with a $1,775 grant from the S&H Foundation sponsored by the Sperry and Hutchinson Co.

Dr. Cecil Currey, assistant professor of history, said the forum will serve to provide the presentation of scholarly, well articulated views on Chinese policy.

Dr. Currey, who will direct the forum, said "we hope to provide not a rehash of old arguments but a concerned articulation of problems and possibilities allowing for new insights and for answers thoroughly grounded in the practicalities of world affairs."

Tentative plans, he said, call for a representative from the Department of International Relations in the Center for Continuing Studies at the University of Pennsylvania and an official from the diplomatic corps of the Soviet Union embassy in Washington to appear at the forum.

Dr. Currey said the speakers will discuss the general topic: "Limits and Conditions of Containment of Chinese Communism" and "Conditions of Peaceful Coexistence?"

He said the S&H grant will provide all the funds needed to hold the forum.

Dr. Currey said a member of the Russian embassy is being included in the forum for several reasons.

"Obviously, a Russian speaker would not give us a neutral or objective opinion. He could offer an extremely valuable analysis as to the Soviet Union's hopes for our future relations with China," Dr. Currey said.

Leftist Barrientos Expected Choice As Bolivian Chief

La Paz, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivians elected Sunday a civilian government to replace the military junta which has ruled for almost two years. A moderate leftist victory was considered certain.

Former Armed Forces Commander Rene Barrientos and his five-party Bolivian Revolutionary Front were expected to win the presidency and overwhelming majorities in both houses of congress.

He served as co-president of the junta after the November 1964 revolution.

First returns, mostly from La Paz, showed Barrientos' front running 2-1 ahead of the right of center Falange.

By Bolivian standards, it was a spectacularly quiet election.

Police and the electoral court reported only scattered incidents of rock-throwing and brawling among some groups. About a half dozen people were reported hurt, none seriously.

State 'Lost' Nearly $6 Million In Federal Funds

By JOHN ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

Nebraska state departments and agencies "lost" nearly $6 million in federal funds when the fiscal year ended, a survey showed.

State officials said a minimum of $5.7 million in federal dollars specifically allocated to Nebraska for use during the 1965-66 period which ended Thursday was not utilized.

The funds were redistributed to other states, returned to the federal treasury or were never released from the treasury.

About $2.9 million of the "lapsed" funds total was relinquished by the Education Department, which still had a federal spending total approaching $10 million for the 12 months.

Failed To Qualify

Education Commissioner Floyd Miller said $1.8 million was not expended under a section of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act designed to bolster educational programs primarily for children from low-income families. He said many of Nebraska's rural districts failed to qualify for the program.

Fred Novak, head of the Education Department's vocational rehabilitation division, said the department failed to spend more than $1 million in vocational rehabilitation funds because of a shortage of state matching dollars.

Nebraska was one of seven states which failed to spend all of its federal allotment under the anti-poverty community action program, and the state had to turn back a total of $1.4 million in anti-poverty funds.

Verne Pangborn, chief of the medical facilities section of the Health Department, said Nebraska's $265,708 federal allotment for construction of mental health facilities was turned over to Iowa, and the state's $100,000 share of mental retardation funds went to South Dakota.

The survey indicated a variety of reasons for failure to use the federal dollars, including lack of state matching money, lack of necessary state legislation or failure to qualify for programs.

Matching Funds Lacking
State officials said matching dollars were lacking either because the Legislature declined to appropriate the necessary funds, Congress expanded programs after the Legislature adjourned or state administrators did not request full matching dollars from the Legislature.

Among the departments and agencies which gobbled up virtually all of their federal allotments were the Game Commission, Educational Television Commission, Library Commission and the Aeronautics, Labor and Public Welfare departments.

Following is a breakdown on unused federal funds by department:

Education: $1,862,500 under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act; $49,657 for the basic adult education program; $3,521 for vocational education; $1,011,043 for vocational rehabilitation.

Health: $193,000, primarily for health disease control and chronic illness programs; $265,708 for mental health facilities; $100,000 for mental retardation facilities.

Roads: $92,249 for roadside billboard and junkyard control.

Institutions: approximately $100,000 for state hospital improvements; $662,164 for services for the visually impaired.

Civil defense: $5,000 for bomb shelter program.

Anti-poverty: $900,000 under the community action program; $371,681 for summer head start programs; $137,000 for work experience and training for the jobless.

Alva Okies Pray Sunday For Rain

Alva, Okla. (UPI) —Residents of Alva held a special day to pray for rain Sunday.

Mayor Roscoe Horner proclaimed the day of prayer because wheat farmers have not been able to plow.

"You can't even chisel through the ground," he said. "We're in bad shape. We think this will help, and we really need rain. Our lakes and ponds are all dry."

Alva has recorded 6.1 inches of rain since the first of the year, compared with 11.4 inches during the same period last year.

Horner said the last good rain was in April.

Wilson Cabinet Member Cousins Resigns Post

Monday, July 4, 1966

The Lincoln Star 19

London (AP)—Frank Cousins, technology minister and former trade union boss—quit Prime Minister Harold Wilson's cabinet Sunday in protest against a new bill designed to stabilize Britain's price and income structure and outlaw certain kinds of strikes.

Cousins thus appeared to become available as a ready-made leader of the ruling party's left wing, already in open and wordy revolt against Wilson's leadership and notably his support for President Johnson's Viet Nam policies.

The action by 61-year-old Cousins signalled the likelihood of a major tussle within Britain's Labor Party on policy issues that have for nearly two years been concealed beneath a surface unity evolved for electoral purposes.

An announcement by Wilson's office said Cousins' job will be taken by Postmaster General Anthony Wedgwood Benn. Among the resulting consequential changes of government jobs, government whip Edward Short, 34, took over Benn's post.

The Labor government's prices and incomes bill, due to be published Monday, key-stones Wilson's general program to curb inflation by keeping rises in prices, wages and dividends in line with the rise of national output. At the moment this is set at 3 1/2% annually. Wilson maintains that if the British people fail to exercise this over-all restraint it will overburden the economy and threaten the value of the pound.

In a 1,200-word letter addressed to "Dear Harold," Cousins, one-time leader of the giant Transport and General Workers Union, called the bill "meaningless" and "fundamentally wrong." He indicated he is contemplating returning to his post as secretary-general of his union, which has been kept open for him.

In his letter left-winger Cousins disclosed he has bitterly contested the evolution of the new bill within the cabinet from its inception. The fact that he resigned on the eve of its publication underlined his realization that he had finally lost the battle to convince his colleagues that their policy would only touch off a prolonged phase of industrial unrest.

Cousins' departure, after a long meeting with Wilson Sunday, came at a time of intensive political maneuvering by Wilson to keep his divided party under control. He had enraged many followers—middle-roads as well as left-wingers—by his intervention in the 46-day shipping strike because it seemed to them he sided with the employers rather than the strikers.

But perhaps the most passionate protests arose last week when left wingers led sustained demands for Britain to repudiate all support for the American position in Viet Nam. These demands coincided with the new American bombing of targets near Hanoi and Haiphong, which Wilson criticized. But his action only encouraged critics to intensify their campaign for total British disassociation from the Americans.

Almost a third of the Laborites in the House of Commons have put their names to a formal motion demanding Britain's repudiation of American policy in Viet Nam. The issues are to be debated, probably Thursday, with Wilson reported determined to stand firm in the general endorsement he has given Johnson's broad objectives in Viet Nam.

Cousins' resignation, however, will provide a new test for Wilson and his left wing. At least 40 Laborites are expected to oppose the new bill, even to voting against it. And this, in British political terms, is the most serious display of defiance that rank and file legislators can make.

In his letter, Cousins said other disputes will certainly occur. He said the new national incomes and prices board will become only a rubber stamp for decisions predetermined by the government.

Disease Kills 11

Pergamino, Argentina (AP)—A disease transmitted to humans by field mice killed 11 persons in the Pergamino area of central Argentina last week. Called hemorrhagic fever, it produces fever and internal and external bleeding.

Four Wesleyan Students Perfect For Year

Four Nebraska Wesleyan University students compiled perfect straight A averages for the 1965-66 school year, according to Dr. Sam Dahl, dean of the college.

Dr. Dahl noted that 22 of 77 persons on the Dean's List for the second semester had perfect "A" grades also.

Earning straight "A's" both semesters were:

—Loretta L. Good, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Good, 5610 Huntington, Lincoln senior.

—David E. McClure, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McClure, Papillion freshman.

—John R. McKeown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald McKeown, Harlan, Iowa, junior.

—Stephen K. Woodman, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Woodman, Kenesaw senior.

Other persons on the Dean's List who earned perfect "A's" for the second semester are: David Allen Bigler, Omaha sophomore; Roger L. Bunting, Hebron senior; Nancy

Jo Chambers, Phillips freshman; Robert Foster Chandler, Omaha freshman; Roger Allen Cozart, Omaha sophomore; Janet Lorraine Engle, Mendota, Ill., senior; Doreen Joyce Franklin, Lincoln freshman; William E. Fry, Lincoln senior; Robert A. Good, Lincoln sophomore; Pauline M. Haaf, Orient, Ia., freshman; Sharon L. Jermolowicz, Auburn freshman; Jan Vennell Jensen, Ralston sophomore; Yvonne N. Kosuma, Ralston, Hawaii, senior; Samosa Ruth McCloud, Houston, Tex., junior; Steven Craig Moore, Arapahoe sophomore; Great Allen Peterson, Fremont; Sally Diane Swanson, Dec Moines senior and Sandra Lincoln Wagner, Lincoln senior.

"Gone to Glory! Glory be," said my grandma. She read the casualty lists of the Fourth of July with fascination. "Blown to smithereens!" she said.

Small boys (and some men) — blew themselves up by the dozens in those glorious, powder-smoked days. The world had yet to become safe and sane and nuclear.

Rockets sizzled in blazing white through the summer night. Cannon crackers went bang!—dogs headed under the house.

On the stone courthouse steps in a small Midwest town, the politician—all the way from Washington—spoke.

"... our comrades whose names are forever cherished in our hearts, whose memory is as green as the lands they defended..."

He spoke without aid of loudspeakers. His face shiny in the heat, his voice ringing. His hand pointed dramatically to the monument where the green-bronze soldier leaned on his green-bronze rifle.

In the front row, the veterans in Union blue stirred and nodded in appreciation.

"Bang! Bang!" went the crackers. "Bang! Bam! Bang!" Glory be!

I don't remember how many small boys we blew to glory. The papers wrote, editorials about it—the day after.

I don't suppose it was a great many. Hardly the 500-plus dead we predict these weekends on the highways.

Still I suppose it was useless, and it's better to be safe and sane.

Surely is quiet around here though. I got a few sparklers. But a sparkler is kind of a wet sock. We used to let girls hold sparklers.

"... forever on this hallowed soil!" cried the politician and people crowded around him and shook his hand.

The preacher came forward and everybody bowed their heads while he reminded them that dust they were and to dust they must return.

"Amen," he said.

"Amen," said everybody. "Shall we go over to the house and have some lemonade. I declare I don't know when I've seen such a hot Fourth."

"Bang! Bang! Bang!" went the crackers. Horses tried to crowd into the hitching rack. "Whoa there! Easy!" said the men.

I surely do think a couple of those itty-bitty crackers wouldn't do much harm.

We used to hold those by the end—if you pinched them it didn't hurt when they went off. Just a little scary while you held it at arm's length. With your eyes closed. And the fuse went fzzzzzz—pop!

Boys who got a finger blown off were the ones who tried to hold the big firecrackers.

Somebody said "I dare you and double dare you!"

Some kids got their eyelashes scorched sticking around a fizzing rocket too long.

Grandma said the big danger of fireworks burns was you got lockjaw.

We asked what was lockjaw, grandma?

She said: "Your jaw locks up and they have to pry it open with a crowbar!"

After the speeches there was a parade. The band played "When Johnny comes marching home again, hurrah! hurrah!"

The veterans, who were getting some mileage on by that time, rode in the backs of cars. Or in a buggy with a horse in front.

The dinner in most homes was roast chicken. It was served in the early afternoon. After dinner was reserved for explosive experiments.

"Put the big one under the tin can. I double dare you to put your foot on it!" Bang!

In the evening we set off the rockets. Great fiery trails that burst into lovely balls of all colors dropping down the dark sky.

"I'll be glad when the day's over," said my grandmother. "Fetch a paper early. I expect there's been a lot of fireworks accidents."

Majority Wants Crime Attacked At Root--Poll

By LOUIS HARRIS

Revenge against the offender has a low priority in the attitudes of Americans toward the "national crime problem."

Many are anxious about their personal safety and many city dwellers harbor uneasy feelings about their police departments. But most Americans believe that crime can be curbed better by positive measures that attack the environmental and psychological roots of criminal activity than by great employment of police force.

Harris

The latest Harris Survey on attitudes toward crime was made amid increasing anti-crime activity in Washington and across the country. A presidential crime commission is studying the problem
"from arrest to rehabilitation." More federal money is going to local enforcement officials trying to find new crime-fighting techniques. A bill to put more rehabilitation facilities into the battle against drug traffic is sailing through Congress. The Justice Department has come out against capital punishment.

Contrary to the punitive attitudes many experts have expected to find, people express these specific opinions:

By more than 5 to 1 people believe better programs for young people will do more to reduce crime than merely a beefing up of the local police force.

By 7 to 1 people think prisons should be more corrective than punitive, with heavy emphasis on rehabilitating criminals so that they may re-enter society.

By 4 to 3 most Americans reach the same conclusion about capital punishment that the Justice Department has.

A carefully drawn cross section of the adult public asked:

"What do you think are the three or four major things that contribute to crimes—that is, the main reasons people become criminals?"

Upbringing
Bad environment
Mentality
Wrong companions
No education
Broken homes
Greed, easy money
Too much money around
Not enough money in home
Liquor, dope
Laziness
For kicks
No religion
No job
No chance by society
Born bad
Feeling of hopelessness
Moral breakdown of society
Democracy, sex
Failure of police

(Note: percentages add to more than 100 people volunteered more than one cause.)

Implicit in what people say is a rejection of the idea that there is a criminal type in society who cannot be redeemed. Clearly, the American public is firmly on the side of trying to save criminals rather than writing them off.

This is most evident in replies to the question:

"Leading authorities on crime feel there are two ways to reduce crime. One way is to head off crime by working with young people to show them that nothing can be gained through a life of crime. Another way is to strengthen our law enforcement agencies to make it harder for criminals to get away with crime. While both ways might be desirable, if you had to choose, which one would you favor: trying to stop criminals before they begin or strengthening the police force to crack down on crime?"

Again, when asked why they feel this way, strong desires for rehabilitation emerged.

Views on youth programs

Why work with young people?
Better to prevent crime
Stop before it starts
Only stop through education
Costs less to stop it
Help them go to church
Learn to respect curfew
Why strengthen police?
Prevent fear into criminals
Prevent more projects
Bid law of loopholes
Punish should train
Learn only if caught
Sordidness commit crime
Not sure

Despite the rising crime rates, Americans do not wish to turn to the billy club as a deterrent. Rather, most people want to attack what they believe are the roots of crime:
how people live and are brought up.

On capital punishment, the cross section was asked:

"Some states have abolished capital punishment—
executing a person who commits a murder — and have substituted life imprisonment instead. Do you favor or oppose capital punishment?"

Nation-wide
By education 8th grade or less
High school College
By size of place
City
Suburban Town Rural
By sex
Men Women

It is surprising that the less well-educated, more rural and small town resident — women especially — carry the day against capital punishment. The more affluent parts of society, especially among men and suburban dwellers, are more in favor of continuing capital punishment.

On the subject of the approach to take toward criminals in prison, people were
asked:

"Do you feel that most prisons today mainly try to be corrective — that is, try to make criminals into useful citizens — or mainly try to be punitive — that is, punish the criminal for having broken the law?"

"Do you feel prisons should be mainly corrective, trying to rehabilitate criminals, or mainly punitive, punishing them for their crimes?"

Mainly corrective Mainly punitive
Not sure

When asked why they held their views on how prisoners should be treated, here are the volunteered answers:

Views on prison treatment
Why mainly corrective?
Make better citizens
Should be rehabilitated
Better to correct than to punish Give them a chance
Criminals should be educated
More correction means less
crime
Make safe to protect society
Costs money to keep in prison

Criminals need mental treatment
Why mainly punitive?
Teach them a lesson
They're no good
No punishment enough
Not sure

These attitudes persist despite indications that 1 adult in 10 has been a victim of crime. In cities 14% of the public told our interviewers that they, personally, have been victimized. Nine percent of suburban dwellers, the national average, said they have suffered from criminal activity, while only 6% of those who live in rural areas said they have felt crime personally.

It is interesting that a higher percentage of upper income people have been victims of crime than those in lower income groups, though the more affluent are most frequently victims of non-violent crimes such as burglary and petty theft.

While the vast majority of people have been personally touched by crime, possibilities of being victimized are much on people's minds.

In other Harris Surveys in recent years almost 50% of the public has said each year they are more worried about their own personal safety on the streets than they were in the previous year.

The major thrust of this insecurity is in cities, where confidence in police is at its lowest ebb. Yet, the existence of crime and the low estimate of law enforcement do not necessarily go together.
The proof of that is in the suburbs, where residents report the fastest growing incidence of crime, but where police are rated highest. People were asked:

"How would you rate the job the federal (state, local) government does on law enforcement — excellent, pretty good, only fair or poor?"

RATINGS OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Nation-wide
Federal State Local

Part of the general uneasiness about police rests in the pattern of bribes, of taking money illegally. People were asked:

"Do you think there are many, some but not a lot,
only a few or almost no policemen in this community who take bribes or money illegally?"

Total Nation
Many take bribes
Some, not a lot
Only a few
Almost none
Not sure

While the public overwhelmingly rejects the idea that many policemen are taking bribes, the significant fact is that less than a majority of the people felt able to say for sure that the police do not take bribes.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY: Contacts With Executives, Readers Are Educational

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

The educational process should not end on commencement day. This writer, far removed in years from his undergraduate days, likes to think that he learns from his first hand contacts with corporate chief executives, with his students, with question-

Rukeyser in lecture forums, and perhaps most of all in the widespread mail which readers of this column from all parts of the country have written for decades.

Even the hostile and critical mail has a cultural value in revealing human emotions and differing reactions.

Axel Colfax, of Lincoln, Nebraska, who describes himself as president of the newly formed League for Total Equality, in his second long communication, takes me to task for a column in which I discussed the ambiguities in SEC rules governing proper procedure in personal investments by corporate insiders. The column raised the question of what animates well to do executives to stay in business in these days of steeply graduated income taxes.

Colfax does not think much of captains of industry. He believes that they are all overpaid, and are "leeches" engaged in what the economist Thorsten Veblen once described as "conspicuous consumption."

Primitive Complaint Colfax implies that the millenium for the outside investor would come if chief executives of corporations were bereft of lush salaries and fringe benefits. His primitive complaint seems to be a phase of the global crusade against exorbitance.

The Nebraska reformer argues: "It is a myth that it takes an extraordinary man to hold down the presidency of a large modern corporation. What possible business ability, for example, does the president of the A T & T need? The rates and rate of return are set by the government. No matter how inefficient or how spendthrift he is with his company's money, he is guaranteed a certain return. This holds true of nearly all of the really big corporations.

Two Viet Cong Attacks Repulsed By Artillery

Salmon (A)—Two Viet Cong hit-and-run attacks on American special forces camps along the sensitive Cambodian border were reported by U.S. military headquarters Sunday.

A spokesman said the guerrillas first sent mortar shells and small arms fire Sunday noon on a Green Beret camp seven miles south of Duc Co and only five miles from the Cambodian frontier.

U.S. artillery barrages repulsed the Viet Cong attack and sent them headed westward toward Cambodia, the spokesman said. A company—178 men—of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division pursued, but contact was broken at nightfall. The size of the attacking force was not known nor were the enemy casualties, the spokesman said. He described American casualties as light.

The second guerrilla attack was launched against the special forces camp at Trai Bi, 10 miles northwest of Ay Ninh city and eight miles from the Cambodian border.

An estimated Viet Cong company of 150 men attacked the camp Sunday night with mortar, automatic weapons and small arms fire. The defenders beat off the attack with artillery barrages, a spokesman said, and the Viet Cong broke contact after an hour and a quarter of fighting.

Pounded Strongholds American jet fighters and high-flying B 52 bombers from Guam pounded Viet Cong strongholds at several points in South Viet Nam Sunday. One fighter was lost to communist ground fire.

The B52s bombarded an enemy troop concentration 35 miles southwest of Da Nang in the northern part of the country and a base camp 70 miles north northwest of Saigon, near the Cambodian border.

The plane that was shot down, an F5 Freedom Fighter, was making a bombing run on a Viet Cong troop concentration 130 miles southwest of Saigon. The pilot was listed as missing.

A U.S. spokesman said no parachute was seen as the supersonic Freedom Fighter went down and other pilots reported spotting Viet Cong soldiers around the wreckage. It was the 113th plane brought down in combat over South Viet Nam in the war.

They Start Young In Indonesia

... NEW LOOK IS MILITANT; EVEN CHILDREN 'ARMED'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The new look in Indonesia today is militant. A uniform is decidedly in fashion, reflecting the powerful influence of the Indonesian army. This story, illustrated by pictures taken by AP photographer Horst Faas, describes the scene and fills in the background.)

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP) — Wearing ill-fitting uniforms, submachine guns thrust before them, a grim-faced company of women goosesteps past the reviewing stand. Behind them trudge girls barely old enough to button their own dresses, stouly marching in the broiling sun with sticks for rifles on their shoulders.

The new look in Indonesia is militant, and a uniform is decidedly fashionable for both men and women. Army-dominated Indonesia is pressing for a rice-roots military program throughout this archipelago's 3,000 islands.

The militant look in Indonesia had its roots in martial law declared in 1957 and enforced until 1963. It really blossomed, however, following the attempted communist coup here last Oct. 1, a coup crushed within hours by the army. Fierce rivalry had existed between the military and the three million communists and the army, seeing a chance to eradicate the communists, pressed its advantage. Troops organized and supported the people in a massive search and slaughter operation that killed thousands upon thousands of communists.

The army immediately began filling all positions previously held by communists or sympathizers with army men so that most top positions in the government are now held by the army, beginning with army strongman Lt. Gen. Suharto and the former defense minister, Gen. Abdul Haris Nasution.

These two men are in effective command of the country and are consolidating their position by steady removal of all who do not give total, unquestioning loyalty. In their place go army officers.

At the moment, the populace shows no resentment toward the army for they feel it was the troops who liberate them from the communist control. They believe the army will run the nation with more liberalism and put the chaotic economy back into some semblance of order.

Nagging Question
But how long good relations with the soldiers will last has become a nagging question, particularly in view of the increasing reports of militant violence.

One Western embassy official told how he saw an army truck accidentally run into a civilian car at a crossing. Two soldiers got out and beat up the driver. Then they took rifles to the car, smashing all the windows and slashing the seats. Armed soldiers have literally hijacked ships at the port near Jakarta. Soldiers also regularly take what they want from ships, particularly those owned by Chinese.

Nevertheless, the army is using its power to win more power, the real program begins in the small village where children, including girls, are taught how to march, fire a rifle and conduct field operations. One girl in central Java said she liked the drilling because it gave her a chance to meet and talk with her friends.

There is little recreation for youths in Indonesia; movie houses are rare and soda fountains unheard of. Daily marching at least brings them together.

The program is intensive, ranging up to three months a year for all level of school children. Down dusty village streets, in soccer fields, along city streets, children are on the march in Indonesia.

Several European visitors have commented on the strong similarity between Indonesian military training for children and Nazi Germany's Hitler Jugend. The image became almost bizarre at the port near Jakarta where, along with propaganda broadcasts, the German march song "Bodenweller" was playing. It was a Hitler favorite.

Pravda Deplores Shakedown By Communist Storekeepers

Moscow (UPI) — Russian auto worker Makar Khlobystov went south to look for sun and sand.

What he found instead, Pravda reported Sunday, was a gentle shakedown from nearly every shopkeeper and salesman he ran into — a shakedown so widespread that the Communist Party newspaper printed a plea for an end to sharp dealing in this communist society.

Khlobystov's complaints, as recounted by the Communist Party newspaper, only confirmed what many other travelers here have discovered.

—Tradesmen who reject tips, but who plead an inability to make change for even a one-rubel ($1.10) note. The result — they keep the change.

—Prices that fluctuate wildly, with customers who complain being told to pay up or go without. The result — because of shortages, they pay up.

—State-employed workers who strike private bargains, refusing to do work either promptly or well otherwise. The result — the private deal goes through, and they collect their state pay in addition.

"A struggle must be waged against these pocket-emptiers, not only for the sake of saving a kopeck (penny), but to make the atmosphere of our lives healthier, for the sake of the inviolable principles of honest Soviet life," Pravda said.

"I went to a barber shop for a shave—and was charged all of 50 kopecks," Khlobystov said. "I said I would give the money to the cashier, and the barber said it was not necessary. But the barber just winked, and said his relations with the state were very complicated. He just pocketed the 50 kopecks."

Clan MacBean Reunion Set In Lincoln Next July

A Scottish agitator, a famous Indian scout, a participant in the battle of Bunker Hill, a pioneer. All of these are included in the ancestral background of the Clan MacBean.

According to Bernie Bean, the international executive secretary of the Clan MacBean, the descendants of the original colonial settler, John Bean, have all been traced.

Today, the Bean Clan is planning a reunion which will include between 500 and 1000 people, according to Bean. On July 7, 1967, the Beans will arrive in Lincoln from all directions.

On the agenda for the three-day reunion, Bean said, are a picnic at Pioneer's Park, a banquet, a family worship service and a display of arts, crafts, and hobbies of the family.

On July 8 a style show featuring the ancestral wedding gowns of the clan will be concluded by a ball, the girls dancing in their ancestral gowns and the men in kilts.

was sent to Exeter, N. H., in the American Colonies.

During his voyage to the New World, his name changed. The ship's clerk who booked his passage inadvertently dropped the Mac from the Bean. John Bean simply accepted the change.

When he reached America, his relative said, he became a real estate developer, much like those of today. He went into the lumber business with a mill of his own.

John Bean and his five sons became involved in the French and Indian wars. One of the five sons was James Bean, the famous Indian scout for the Colonies.

Eight grandsons of John Bean fought in the battle of Bunker Hill, where three were killed, his descendant said.

Also included in the family history is a wagon train which carried a large portion of the family westward.

"In America," Bean said, "we have been breaking away from family life. Our effort next year is devoted to building family relationships again through this reunion."

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't both old and new address.
